FEATHERS FLY as a hungry hawk devours his prey atop a downtown utility pole Thursday. The large bird paid little attention to pedestrians and traffic around the 7-Eleven convenience store at Niedringhaus Avenue and 19th Street as it dined on an unfortunate pigeon.

Marriage does have rewards

Married couples may receive $25 refunds

By Bill Milligan

Staff writer

BELLEVILLE — Couples married prior to December 1986 may get an unexpected windfall from the Illinois Attorney General's Office.

Clerks in St. Clair and Madison counties have handed over to the state the $25 domestic violence surcharge that's been collected on each marriage license.

Money from the domestic violence surcharge was intended to fund domestic violence programs throughout the state. Once $10, a 1984 law raised the surcharge to $25. The Illinois Supreme Court ruled the charge unconstitutional in early 1986. The case involved a Cook County couple.

More than 80 counties, including St. Clair and Madison counties, have filed a request in Sangamon County seeking direction on how to best refund the money.

The attorney general is auditing records kept by each county to determine how much each must refund.

Refunds are being processed by Cook County. Before local couples can expect a refund, the court must determine how much money is available.

A December 1986 court order forced St. Clair County to stop collecting the surcharge, said Clerk Janice Delane. The county now charges $15 to process the marriage license.

Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles has given the county's surcharge paid to state officials.

Reviews and previews

Secretaries, board at odds

The District 9 secretarial union gave the Board of Education a five-day strike notice on Friday. The practice of giving seniority preference on bidding for district jobs appeared to be the major sticking point, with union negotiators wanting seniority bidding kept and the board wanting the practice eliminated. Should the two sides be unable to reach a compromise this week, picketing at schools could begin on Monday. Teachers are in the same union as the secretaries and could honor the picket line.

Waste hauler asks for exemption

Granite City's sludge and trash hauler, Laidlaw Waste Systems, may ask it be exempted from a new 45-cent per-cubic-yard charge on waste haulers by the state and a 22½-cent charge by the county. A Laidlaw spokesman said it plans to ask the Environmental Protection Agency for the exemption if the city does not pay the company more to make up for the charges.

MESD given more money

Metro East Sanitary District was given $300,000 by the federal government last week. The money will be added to about $900,000 the district has been given from state and federal agencies to complete repairs to its East St. Louis pumping station, which was damaged by a flood last October.

A full-page ad by Schermer's food stores included lamb loin roast for 19 cents a pound, beef tenderloin at 29 cents a pound, a three-pound can of Old Judge coffee for 89 cents, cabbage for 3 cents a pound and a bushel of apples for $1.73.

Tell it like it is

Q: What is your opinion of the ABC television mini-series "Amerika"?

Ronnie Houston

"I watched the first three episodes. I thought it was very slow and very boring. I quit watching it. It's (the plot) improbable. If (a Soviet takeover) would never happen like that."

Judy Meyer

"I didn't watch it. My son started watching it and he said it skipped around so much. When it's like that (a series), you have to watch it every night to follow it. I didn't want to do that."

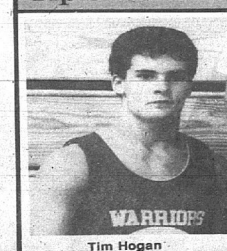

NEXT WEEK: Should Granite City's waste hauler, Laidlaw Waste Systems, be exempted from Madison County's new waste-dumping charges for waste haulers? (Laidlaw has applied for an exemption).

To record your answer, phone 452-0222 between 5:30 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily. Leave your name, hometown and phone number for verification.

Quote of the week

"When we get out of church on Sunday ... it's like a race track out there," said the Rev. John Henry Williams, minister at the New Salem Baptist Church, who wants more police patrols in the church's neighborhood.

Tip of the hat

Tim Hogan

1,000th point

Tim Hogan, a guard for the Warrior basketball team, is recognized for scoring his 1,000th point in his varsity career Saturday night in Granite City's 62-59 victory at East St. Louis. Hogan, a 5-9 senior guard, is only the sixth player in Granite City history to top 1,000 points. Hogan could move even higher as an all-time scorer this year.

GRANITE CITY — Door-to-door solicitors are making their way around the city in increased numbers, said Police Chief Bill Harris.

A city ordinance is on the books regulating solicitors' activities, Harris said. The ordinance includes solicitors seeking orders for purchasing goods or services, looking for prospective customers for applying or purchasing insurance or asking for gifts or contributions of money, clothing or other items for support of a charitable or non-profit organization, corporation or project.

Solicitors must obtain a permit from the city, and residents should ask to see the permit before letting them into their home, he said.

Solicitors are not allowed in houses where a no solicitation sign is posted, Harris said. They must leave a residence if asked to, he said.

Residents should not be pressured into a making a donation or buying something they do not need or want, Harris said.

Sympathy appeals should also be avoided, said Dennis Orsey, assistant Illinois attorney general. "Do not allow yourself to be taken advantage of at a time of year when most people have a natural inclination to be more generous, for example, during the Christmas holidays," Orsey said.

Door-to-door sales are subject to the Federal Trade Commission's "cooling-off" period, Orsey said. This allows a person to cancel a contract when sold door-to-door, with-

BAC survey will ask what residents want

By Dave Gossnell

Staff writer

Who is not using Belleville Area College and why aren't they?

Those questions and more will be asked in a survey authorized by the BAC Board of Trustees on Tuesday.

"It will be (directed) at people who have never used the college," Kathy O'Dell, BAC's director of public information, told board members.

O'Dell said the survey, costing $5,000, will be conducted by Fleishman-Hillard, a St. Louis-based public relations firm. She said the college should periodically evaluate what residents want and why some do not use BAC.

"From time to time, we need to ask ourselves what's needed in the district," O'Dell said.

While fielding questions from board members about why the college is not using salaried recruiters for the survey, O'Dell said the recruiters' function is mainly to encourage high school students to enroll at the college. She said statistics indicate the college could increase enrollment by reaching older district residents and the survey would be used to determine what programs other groups want.

"Our population is so large and so diverse, we can't just consider one of those groups," she said.

The district contains about 370,000 residents. Statistics show 61 percent of the district's population is 35 years old and older, but the majority of BAC students are ages 18 to 24.

The survey, called "Community needs study," will be done throughout the district and include interviews with students who did not finish at the college, O'Dell said.

Trustee Elizabeth Jenner, who was the only board member voting against the proposal, said

Layoff planned

VENICE — Two laborers will be laid off for a one-month period to help conserve funds, it was decided at last week's meeting of the Board of Park Commissioners.

Similar actions have been taken in previous years, Anna Claggett, board president, said Thursday.

THE MEASURE will reduce the district staff during March when activities are at a low ebb, she said.

"We've done it just about every year and it affects only the laborers. We have no (teen) dances or other activities planned in March," Claggett said.

Park maintenance superintendent Robert Wigfall will remain on duty, as well as one park security officer, she said.

DURING MONTHS when more activities are held and park usage is greater a second security officer is added to the staff, she said.

"We've got to keep our expenses down until we receive the next replacement tax money," said Arnold Johnson, park district manager, who recommended the board authorize the month-long layoff.

Johnson said between $5,000 and $6,000 in corporate replacement tax money will be received by the district in March.

THE MANAGER reported the district also can expect to receive some projected tax money for the first time.

"I understand a settlement has been made and we should get about $25,000, but I'm not sure what the procedure is at this point."

"I don't know exactly what we will get," Johnson added. The anticipated funds come from tax objections filed by Consolidated Aluminum, which protested its 1984 taxes, he said.

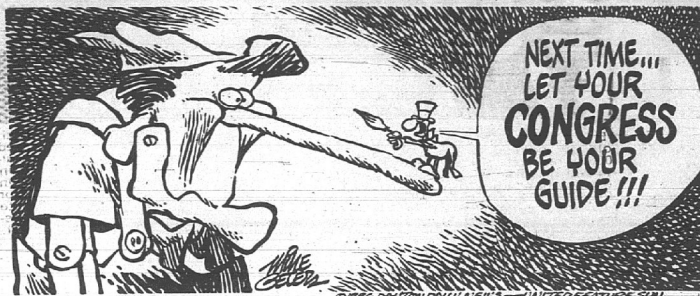

Commissioners also discussed allowing a group to organize teams for summer softball leagues in the park district, including a Memorial Day weekend tournament. Final action was deferred until further information is secured.

Golden years can be time of misery

To the editor:

Mrs. Helen Green from Memphis, Tenn., was a witness before a committee on which I serve. Because she represents so many I have talked to and heard from, let me tell you about her and her husband, William.

She is 68; her husband is 72. They both worked hard and now she draws $240 a month from Social Security and he draws $419, for a total of $659. They own their own small home and have a son and daughter living some distance away.

In 1982 he went into the hospital for a hernia operation, and surgeons discovered a 10-pound, four-ounce tumor that was removed, along with one of his kidneys.

The Greens were protected by Medicare and also two health insurance policies.

The hospital bills were largely covered, but the Greens owed the surgeon $3,000 and the anesthesiologist $67.

The anesthesiologist turned his bill over to a collection agency. The sheriff came to the Greens home with a warrant and said — Mrs. Green related — that they "would come and take our refrigerator out of our home or anything they wanted for that bill, or even go so far as to sell our home if the bill was not paid."

They tried to make arrangements to pay the bill, but then Helen Green — just short of being 65 and eligible for Medicare — had to go into the hospital for cancer of the colon.

By that time the Greens had had to drop one of their two health insurance policies because they could not afford it.

She tried to put off going to the hospital until she would be covered by Medicare, but because of severe rectal bleeding she could no longer delay the hospital stay.

Her husband was worried about her, and both were worried about being harassed by people for the medical bills they already had.

Her physician worked things out so there would be only a small doctor's charge for Mrs. Green's 14-day hospital stay.

But she owed the hospital more than $1,000. The hospital turned it over to the collection agency.

Then phone calls started from that agency.

Mrs. Green recalled, "Among the most heartbreaking things is he kept telling me, 'Well, I notice you have a telephone. If you have a telephone you can put the money on us.' And of course when you get to our age or over it is essential you have a phone in your home."

The Greens were then worried about the loss of their home. When Mr. Green left the hospital he was told to take medicine costing $23 a month. He has never been able to take it because they can't afford the $23.

Mrs. Green is supposed to have a checkup every six months since her cancer operation four years ago. She did it once. It cost $74. She has not been back since.

Now she's having serious health problems again but she is afraid to go to the doctor because he will send her to the hospital. She also hesitates to go there because he has been good to her and she is embarrassed that she owes him $59.

Her husband is having serious back pains but refuses to go to the doctor because of costs. He fears cancer or loss of his remaining kidney.

The Greens need glasses and hearing aids but they cannot afford either.

The Greens need glasses and hearing aids but they cannot afford either.

"I would not look like I do today if I could go to the dentist," she told me. "They have a small amount, but people like us don't have the small amount."

"They say they charge one-third, which is wonderful if you can pay that third. But if you're down, like we are, you cannot pay that."

William and Helen Green have been hard-working, solid citizens who ought to be enjoying their retirement. But the golden years have turned into years of misery.

"Can this good and rich country do better for people like Mr. and Mrs. Green? Of course we can. Will we? That is much less clear."

We have to make a choice of priorities. So far it's the choice between more and more missiles and helping Mr. and Mrs. Green. The Greens are losing out.

U.S. SEN. PAUL SIMON

Mom sends money to her son, the ambassador

WASHINGTON — What's a mother to do when her son gets a prestigious job and needs to keep up appearances? She sends a check, of course.

Estee Lauder, the cosmetics tycoon, wrote out a check for $150,000 last May and sent it to the State Department for the "gift fund" at the American embassy in Vienna, where her son, Ron, is ambassador. The controversial gift funds were a Reagan administration idea — since terminated — designed to give an ambassador more money for entertainment than was provided by the sometimes miserly "representational fund" allotted by Washington.

Mom's generosity may have been whetted by the fact that the tax-deductible donation would allow Ambassador Lauder to keep pace with the lavish entertaining style of his predecessor, Helene von Damm — who, like Estee Lauder, was Austrian-born. But the size of the Lauder donation shocked the bureaucrats in Foggy Bottom, who were accustomed to gifts of $5,000 or so.

With diplomatic timidity, State Department officials sat on the $150,000 until October, when news stories appeared on possible gift fund abuses by Ambassador Faith Ryan Whitley in Switzerland. That ended the bureaucrats' five-month hesitation. The Lauder check was returned to sender.

Lack of his mother's check did not deprive Ambassador Lauder of money for extracurricular goodwill gestures. State Department sources told our associate Lucette Lagando that when he learned that the embassy's 1986 summer youth employment program was in need of funds, Lauder wrote out a check for $10,000 and gave it to the program.

Meanwhile, alerted by the news stories on the Whitley expenditures, which reportedly included entertainment of wealthy Americans who had donated to her embassy fund, the House Foreign Operations Subcommittee ordered a General Accounting Office investigation of all the embassy gift funds. The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., is planning hearings on the funds.

Here are some of the expenditures of von Damm made during her tenure at the Vienna embassy, according to the GAO auditors:

In September 1985, she spent more than $13,000 to take some 400

Weekly Special

Jack Anderson & Joseph Spear
United Features

guests on a "friendship cruise" on the Danube River. The tab included boat rental, restaurant meals, fireworks and a photographer to record the event.

In August 1985, von Damm dipped into the embassy gift fund to buy a $600 coat as a birthday present for Dagmar Koller, wife of Vienna's mayor. Cable traffic between the embassy and Foggy Bottom revealed an initial reluctance in Washington to approve the expenditures; it was finally OK'd after the fact.

In December 1985, von Damm played the gracious hostess to Attorney General Edwin Meese, his son and their wives, who stopped off in Vienna while on a European tour. The ambassador, who worked in the White House while Meese was there, threw a party for the visitors. She also arranged tickets to the Vienna Opera production of "Fidelio," at a cost of $317.26 for five tickets. The purpose of the expenditure was "to further U.S. interests," according to the embassy voucher.

MOVIELAND FOR MARIO: Hollywood liberals have their checkbooks ready to back New York's Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo should he decide to run for president, say our sources, but they are pondering who they could push on Cuomo as a running mate. They would like either Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., or ex-Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo. But Biden is an Easterner like Cuomo, and Hart probably wouldn't be willing to take the second spot.

One movie producer told us he likes Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a choice that would balance liberal with conservative. North with South, governor with senator and Roman Catholic with Protestant. Unfortunately, Nunn has yet to show much interest for either national office.

STRANGE SUGGESTION: Raoul Wallenberg was a Swedish diplomat who saved thousands of Hungarian Jews from the Nazis during World War II and then was arrested by the Soviets. Reports of his survival, probably in a Siberian labor camp, persist to this day; Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., who was rescued by Wallenberg as a boy in his native Hungary, receives many of them.

One caller recently suggested a way to prove that Wallenberg is still alive. A marching band should tour the Gulag, said the helpful constituent, and play the distinctive fight song of the University of Michigan, which Wallenberg attended. If the Swedish hero heard a line like "Hail to the conquering heroes," the caller reckoned, he would surely become excited and thus be identified.

A member of Rep. Lantos' staff pointed out that the Soviets might not allow an American band to tour the labor camp.

TWO CENTS' WORTH: Right-wing fanatics have been saying for years that the big bankers have President Reagan in their pockets. We once thought the suggestion hilarious; now we're not so sure. The Internal Revenue Service wants to let taxpayers settle their income-tax debts with their credit cards — a privilege that could cost them as much as 21 percent in interest charges. The big bankers who control the credit card industry must be delighted.

Officials all over U.S. want to tour county transit facility

The $1.6 million Madison County Transit District facility soon to open in Pontoon Beach is expected to be a model for other transit organizations updating their operations.

The facility will use a state-of-the-art computerized dispatching system, said Jerry Kane, managing director of the transit district. The district will be the first in the country to use the system, he said.

The facility also will have the latest in equipment for its maintenance garage, he said. It will be designed for work on specially-equipped vehicles used in transit programs for the handicapped and elderly.

Kane said other transit organizations throughout the U.S. already have asked to tour the facility. But now he's concentrating on getting it finished so it can be in operation by April.

"I've been very involved in the quality control," he said this week. "I want to make sure the district ends up with an excellent facility."

The offices of the transit district in Edwardsville and the Agency for Community Transit (ACT) in Granite City will be combined at the site.

ACT is a non-profit organization funded by the transit district; it provides door-to-door transportation for the handicapped and elderly. The transit district contracts with Bi-State Development Agency for general bus services.

The facility is a one-story brick and masonry building west of Illinois 111, just north of Interstate 270. It has 22,000 square feet.

An integral part of the facility is the scheduling and dispatching room, with carpeting on the walls to make it easier to hear people on the other end of the phone or radio.

In ACT programs, the caller often is an elderly person with a weak voice who needs a ride to a doctor appointment, Kane said. ACT vehicles are equipped with radios for dispatching.

The $50,000 computer system is called Paratransit Advance Reservation and Scheduling (PARRAS). It allows many computer terminals to hook into a data base for scheduling and routing, he said.

Kane said the transit district got in touch with the company developing the software as it was being completed. Orange County, Calif., also plans to install a PARRAS system, he said.

Scheduling and routing now are being done manually "and we are beyond the limits of the systems that we have," he said.

Kane expects the names and trip requirements of about 5,000 persons using transit services to be fed into the data base.

"The computer will make it much faster and simpler to schedule stops for ACT vehicles," Kane said.

"Some of these people depend on this for life-supporting services such as dialysis," Kane said. "If they call up and we aren't there, some of these people wouldn't know what to do."

Kane said the commuter van pool program operated by the transit district also will be computerized for ride matching. In the program, commuters with common destinations ride together in a van.

The facility also will have a maintenance center equipped to work on the specially-equipped vehicles, which have lifts and radios.

The facility is designed so noise from the maintenance area will not carry into the offices, Kane said.

Vehicles not in service will be stored at the facility, which sits on five acres. It also will serve as a transfer point for some bus riders.

The building will have large conference rooms that will be available for meetings that serve the aged and handicapped.

"We're going to try to make this building available to all," he said.

The project has used no state or federal money, Kane said. It is being funded by the transit district.

The district receives money from a 1/4 sales tax applied in nine townships in Madison County, he said.

The architect for the project is Ed Kane Jr., Edwardsville, who is not related to Jerry Kane. Leo Wolf of Granite City is the general contractor.

Kane said finishing touches such as landscaping and exterior painting will be done when the weather turns warm.

Named child safety officer

The Illinois Department of State Police has announced the selection of Trooper Patricia K. McDaniel of Granite City as the District 11 child safety officer.

The position is one of 10 statewide, and is part of the Public Affairs Section working in conjunction with the State I-SEARCH Unit.

McDaniel will be responsible for educational programs pertaining to personal safety for children in kindergarten to the eighth grade. Programs will include: stranger danger, good touch/bad touch, drug abuse and drug prevention education, latch-key, bicycle and pedestrian safety.

Programs will be presented in accordance with state mandates for the school curriculum.

The Department of State Police and I-SEARCH (Illinois State Enforcement Agencies to Recover Children) are working together to educate children, parents, educators, law enforcement and the community in child safety issues.

The premise is that education will aid in the prevention of abductions and other harm committed to children. Program messages to children are to: "Say No, Get Away and Tell Someone."

Trooper McDaniel and other child safety officers were required to complete five weeks of specialized training at the State Police Training Academy.

Special classes included program development, reporting, court, case studies on missing and exploited children, juvenile law and instructor development.

McDaniel is a graduate of Collinsville High School and Evangel College, Springfield, Mo. She joined the department in 1985 and currently resides with her husband, Cletus, in Granite City.

Persons interested in a program are asked to contact the District 11 headquarters, Collinsville, at 345-1212.

Bowling will benefit Big Brothers, Sisters

Is bowling up your alley or do you just like to have a good time? If so, you can help Big Brothers/Big Sisters achieve its youth-serving goals by organizing a bowling team to Bowl for Kids' Sake on Saturday, March 7, at Montclair Bowl in Edwardsville.

If you're already in a bowling league, your team can designate one game during regular league play for Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Southwestern Illinois. Bowlers who participate March 7 at Montclair will bowl free. Prizes will be awarded and each bowler will be given a gift to commemorate the event.

Youths and adults who turn in the largest amount of pledges or who have the highest number of paid sponsors will qualify for grand prizes.

For information, a team registration form and sponsor sheets, Jan or Joyce can be called at 876-2838. Individuals who would like to be placed on a team also are invited to call.

Volunteers asked to fight home violence

GRANITE CITY — Volunteers are sought by Phoenix Crisis Shelter, an organization devoted to helping battered women and their children.

The organization has several fine volunteers, but the increasing need to assist abuse victims in this area means the shelter itself needs more help, said Phoenix President Judy Crider.

The need for volunteers was being discussed Thursday by Phoenix board members when a woman and child came to the door seeking help.

The need is obvious, Crider said, but added long hours of volunteer work isn't as important as reliability. An afternoon or evening of work per week, for example, would be a big help, she said.

To volunteer, receive more information or get help, call 451-1008.

Constitution event planned by bar

Dennis J. Orsey of Granite City, 1987 president of the Tri-City Bar Association, is helping plan for local observance of the U.S. Constitution's 200th anniversary.

A 1979 graduate of the Southern Illinois University School of Law, Orsey is an assistant Illinois attorney general and serves as the regional director in charge of the eight-county Granite City Regional Office of Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan. Orsey said some of the priorities for the Bar Association this year will be continued participation in annual Law Day programs throughout area high schools on May 1 as well as planning a local event to mark the bicentennial of the signing of the Constitution in September.

The 80-member Tri-City Bar Association consists of attorneys who live or practice in the communities of Granite City, Madison, Venice and Collinsville.

Mark Goldenberg is vice president of the Tri-City Bar, Thomas E. Hildebrand is secretary and Gregory A. Becker is treasurer.

CONDUCT CHARGE FILED

Richard T. Fleetwood, 28, of 1636 Olive St., allegedly went from room to room yelling profanity in the emergency room area at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, alarming employees and patients at 6:45 a.m. Feb. 14. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

AUTO IS BURGLARIZED

Rodger Feltmeyer of 2657 Adams Ave. told police Feb. 12 a burglar took a radar detector, five cassette tapes and a statue from his van while it was parked at 16th Street and Madison Avenue. Value of the items is $246.

CANNABIS CHARGES FILED

Two youths, 15 and 16 years old, were arrested at 11:25 a.m. Feb. 13 in the 3100 block of Myrtle Avenue. Both were charged with unlawful possession of cannabis and released on notices to appear for hearings.

Edgewood-Edwardsville presented with award

A committee of the Edwardsville Economic Development Commission (EDC) has presented a special award, the Mayor's Key Business Award, to the Edgewood-Edwardsville Chemical Dependency Center and three other businesses for their contributions to the city.

Edwardsville Mayor Raymond Rogers, who has the ultimate decision on the awards, said he agreed with the choices the committee made. "There has not been a lot of business construction, but there has been some significant construction in the city," said EDC Chairman

Frank Catalano. Committee members said the Edgewood project was by far the city's most significant construction project that was completed in 1986. The cost of the project was approximately $4 million.

"Edgewood-Edwardsville is in its own special class," Catalano said. "Its significance in dollars is similar to what the Holiday Inn, now the Days Inn, was last year."

Edgewood-Edwardsville is owned and operated by St. Elizabeth Medical Center and managed by St. John's Mercy Medical Center, St. Louis.

Super Collider brings concern, enthusiasm

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's decision to ask Congress to fund a Superconducting Super Collider was greeted with understandable jubilation by Illinois officials who believe the state has a good chance of becoming the site for the giant atom smasher.

For the most part, the focus has been on the positive aspects — the $8-billion investment providing 4,500 construction jobs and 2,500 staff jobs at an accelerator that would draw scientists worldwide in a quest to learn more about the fundamental nature of matter by colliding beams of protons moving at nearly the speed of light.

This giant machine that Energy Secretary John Herrington calls the "crown jewel of high energy physics" has at least 20 states and, by some accounts, as many as 45 states interested in providing the site.

One of the key reasons Illinois is a prime contender is that costs could be pared by $500 million if the equipment at Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory, home of what is currently the world's most powerful accelerator, is used to inject particles into the collider.

But the colossal size, importance and cost of the project that make it so attractive to the many potential host states also work against it.

Concern in the scientific community that the collider's cost could drain funds from other scientific research will be getting increased visibility now that the Reagan administration has decided to push the project on Capitol Hill.

And that concern will be reflected in Congress, particularly by lawmakers who fear projects in their states might be cut or abandoned to finance the collider.

Those fears are not lost on some of the most ardent backers of the collider, who hope the Reagan administration will not fund it at the price of other research.

Gov. Thompson, who has been a steadfast promoter of the project, is aware of the concerns in the scientific community that the Super Collider would be "competing with and maybe crowding out other projects," according to Galen Reser, head of Thompson's office in Washington.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., supports the project — if the costs are not taken from other research.

"If you are talking about building this and pulling away other research, then it's a great mistake to do it," Simon said.

Rep. Dennis Hastert, the Yorkville Republican whose district includes Fermilab, said he has not heard any recent expressions of concern about the collider bumping other projects. But he also said one of his primary concerns is Fermilab's fate if the collider is built elsewhere and Fermi no longer has the "state of the art" accelerator.

Officials at Fermi, which will spend $20 million this year just to pay the electric bill for its new accelerator, are not expecting to lose operating funds if the federal government decides to build an atom smasher 20 times as powerful as Fermi's Tevatron II.

A decision to go ahead with the collider probably would not set back the Fermi operation because the collider would take nearly a decade to complete, or roughly the technological lifespan for Fermi's accelerator, according to a Fermi representative.

There is concern at the neighboring Argonne National Laboratory, which barely escaped fiscal ravaging last year, that it could find its programs cut by a $6 billion drain on science funding, according to a congressional source.

But Rep. Harris Fawell, R-Naperville, whose district includes Argonne, said Argonne is behind the project and that he has never heard any Argonne officials express concern about loss of funds if the Super Collider is built.

Fawell, a member of the House Science and Technology Committee, said he does not think Congress would significantly cut other civilian research programs to fund the collider. Further, he expects Japan and other foreign governments ultimately to contribute half or more of the costs of building the machine. But his expectations do not reflect commitments.

Herrington has said the U.S. government does not have, and could not have sought, foreign commitments until it made a decision on whether to seek funds to build the accelerator.

Illinois parks attracted record crowds in '86

Attendance at Illinois' state parks, conservation areas and other properties during 1986 totaled 33.4 million visitors, the highest turnout ever, as seven sites recorded more than one million patrons.

Horseshoe Lake State Park in Madison County attracted 103,541 persons in 1986. Its attendance was 52,503 in 1985, 58,619 in 1983, 64,077 in 1984 and 88,745 in 1985.

The new state attendance record eclipses the old one of 33.2 million, set in 1978, and is close to 1.5 million better than last year's figures, according to a year-end report prepared by the Conservation Department's Bureau of Public Lands.

Heading the list of park sites having more than a million visitors was Illinois Beach State Park near Zion, with 1,942,366. Runner-up was Chain O'Lakes State Park in McHenry and Lake counties with 1,413,371 visitors. In third place, with 1,405,975, was Pere Marquette State Park near Grafton.

Other million-plus sites were: Giant City State Park, Carbondale, 1,348,155; Rock Cut State Park, north of Rockford in Winnebago County, 1,284,498;

Starved Rock State Park south of Utica in LaSalle County, 1,269,475; and Kankakee River State Park, along the Kankakee River in Kankakee and Will counties, 1,167,097.

Despite the record visitation, three of the seven most popular parks recorded attendance losses from the previous year — Illinois Beach down 102,796 from the 2,045,764 visitors counted the previous year; Chain O'Lakes down about 42,000 from 1985; and Kankakee River, with a dip of 26,000 in attendance.

Eldon Hazlet State Park, East

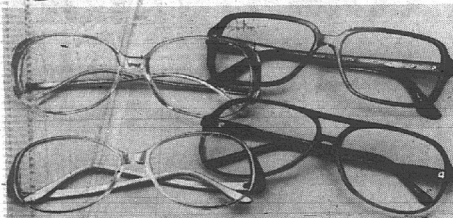

St. Louis, attracted 689,446 persons.

The 1986 record state attendance marks the sixth consecutive annual increase in park visitation, beginning with 25.6 million visitors in 1981.

In its 1986 annual attendance report, the Bureau of Public Lands used figures from 120 sites owned or managed by the Department of Conservation. They included boating access areas, fish and wildlife areas, state forests, state conservation areas and game refuges, as well as state park and state recreation areas.

Metro East development idea endorsed by area lawmakers

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James Thompson's new call for legislation creating a "Southwest (Illinois) Regional Development Authority" was endorsed by area legislators.

Thompson again called for legislation creating the authority to spur new economic development in Madison and St. Clair counties in his "State of the State" speech for 1987.

The governor called the authority a "local, state, private sector partnership to bring to the Illinois side of the river the beginnings of the prosperity now found on the Missouri side in the Metro East, seemingly just a few feet away, but in reality, worlds apart."

"The election is over and turf battles must be put aside," Thompson added in his address to a joint session of the General Assembly.

Last year, a bill pushed by the Thompson administration to create the authority was sponsored by Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton. But McPike decided not to call it for final passage in the House because of a dispute over the legislation between St. Clair County Democrats.

Rep. W. Wayne Young, D-East St. Louis, and others had objected to the new authority last year because of possible interference with an existing East St. Louis Development Authority. The Southwest authority would cover all of Madison and St. Clair counties.

Deputy Gov. Jerry Blakemore said Rep. Young now supports the Southwest authority and the East St. Louis Authority also backs the new agency. Blakemore said the governor's office wanted the new authority to develop "major projects" in the two-county area.

McPike said he would sponsor another attempt to create the authority this year in cooperation with the governor's office.

Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, who had co-sponsored the authority bill last year, also welcomed the governor's call to revive the legislation this spring.

"That's the type of organization that has the authority and bonding power that can be the spearhead of economic development in our area," Wolf said this month.

Blakemore said he anticipated the same provisions as last year would be reintroduced. The bill last year would have provided for state backing of revenue bonds issued by the authority for industrial, commercial and recreational projects in Madison and St. Clair counties.

The authority would not have taxing powers but local governments in the two counties would have been authorized to voluntarily levy property taxes to support authority projects. Local governments would also have 45 days to disapprove any project proposed in their jurisdiction.

An 11-member board would run the authority. It would be composed of directors of three state agencies, four public members appointed by the governor and four public members appointed jointly by the Madison and St. Clair county board chairmen.

Kaegel forms consulting firm

Dick Kaegel, former sports columnist of the Globe-Democrat and once the Press-Record's sports editor, has formed a public relations and consulting firm called Dick Kaegel Associates.

The St. Louis-based agency will create sports-related programs for major corporations and provide special services for sports franchises throughout the country.

Kaegel formerly was editor of The Sporting News, a national weekly, and executive sports editor of the Post-Dispatch. He has covered the World Series, the Super Bowl, the Masters golf tournament, the NCAA Final Four, the Indy 500, the Stanley Cup playoffs and other sports events.

A graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, Kaegel also was a sports-writer for the Columbia, Mo., Daily Tribune and the Belleville News-Democrat.

Tragedy

"MEDEA" AT SIUE THEATER: Walter Marks, as Aegeus, considers giving refuge to Berni Weber as Medea, as a worried Kathleen Brodeur, Granite City, as The Nurse, looks on in a moment from the SIUE Theater's production of the Greek tragedy, Medea, to be presented in the Communications Building theater at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 26, 27 and 28, and at 2 p.m. on March 1.

March of Dimes wants help

A March 5 party in downtown St. Louis will officially kick off WalkAmerica, the largest single fund-raiser of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. WalkAmerica 1987 will be held April 25 at four locations in the Bi-State region. It's counterpart, the Starlight Stroll, will take place in Forest Park on the evening of April 30.

This year the March of Dimes hopes to enlist the aid of more than 9,000 walkers in Missouri and Illinois and raise between $350,000 and $500,000 for the local chapter of the organization. Last year 6,500 walkers pledged $260,000 locally while more than 600,000 walkers raised $39,877,323 nationally.

The starting points for the event this year are St. Charles, downtown St. Louis, Belleville and Edwardsville. Smaller groups will gather for strolls a week later in Troy, Mo. and Warrenton.

Registration for WalkAmerica will be at 8 a.m., April 25, at any of the four starting points selected by walkers. The walk will start at 9 a.m. and continue until about 4 p.m.

Organizations, businesses, schools, church groups and other groups are urged to register members. Corporate challenges also already are planned.

Employees of Kmart, for example, intend to challenge employees of Wal-Mart. Kmart and Mid Continent Bottling Co., which distributes 7-Up and Dr. Pepper in the area, are underwriting this year's event.

With more than 200 team captains already designated to sign up walkers, McDonnell-Douglas also will play a prominent role in the walk.

The March of Dimes already has set signing goals, hoping to register 2,000 walkers in St. Charles, 10,000 walkers in downtown St. Louis and an additional 750 walkers in Illinois. In the past, the walkers have averaged about $45 in donations.

Illinois bonus for recorders of deeds vetoed

SPRINGFIELD — A $5,500 a year state bonus for some elected county recorders was vetoed by Gov. James Thompson Feb. 17 and Madison County Recorder of Deeds Ronald "Rink" Lucas was not pleased.

The county recorders had sought the benefit on the grounds that county clerks, circuit clerks and county treasurers had already been given the same stipends.

Lucas would have been the only local area official to receive the pay benefit. It applied to counties of between 60,000 and 2 million population.

"I don't believe the governor is well-informed. This involves only about $75,000 a year statewide, which is a drop in the bucket compared to the way he spends money," Lucas said of Thompson's action.

The governor said he was vetoing the bill, which had been handled in the Senate during the fall by Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, because "it is not good policy to have a stipend simply as a means of providing additional compensation for county officials to be paid by the state."

Thompson last summer also vetoed a bill providing the same bonus for county treasurers. The legislature overrode him in December, with Madison County Treasurer Michael Henkhaus among those going to Springfield to lobby.

Lucas predicted the recorders would also lobby for an override or seek a new bill. He contended they were just as entitled as the other county officials to the stipend, on the grounds of increased responsibility imposed by the state.

He cited the increase in processing of "greensheets" (declarations on property sales) required by the Illinois Department of Revenue as an example.

Handwriting key to personality

Although Marie Matussek had never met men face-to-face, she certainly knew a lot about me.

"You hate to let go of the past, don't you?" Matussek asked me over the phone. "And you like the nice things in life, even if you can't afford them."

Taking a deep breath, I reluctantly agreed. There were some things I didn't like admitting to myself, let alone other people; but my curiosity was piqued.

"What else do you know about me?" I asked.

"Lots of other things," she quipped, knowing she had my full attention. "We'll have to get together and talk."

Who is Matussek? A psychic? A soothsayer? A psychoanalyst? No, Matussek is a certified graphologist who had just analyzed my handwriting.

"You can tell a lot about a person from their handwriting," Matussek told me a few days later when we met. "Each person's handwriting is unique. You can't tell a person's age, sex, race or religion, but you can tell a person's personality and emotional traits."

Graphology is a science that has become more popular in recent years. The technique is based on stroke analysis. Every basic trait is identified in writing by the physical or visual evidence of a certain stroke structure. And Matussek has been trained to decipher those strokes.

"The big loop that begins your capital M means that you like responsibility and your Ts don't have any lead in strokes, which means you are very direct," Matussek said, as she pointed out examples in my handwriting.

"You have a loop in your Ds which tells me that you are sensitive to criticism, but your Es are rounded so you are broad-minded and will listen to others' ideas."

"This differs with a person whose Es are vertical. That person is narrow-minded and has tunnel vision. It is difficult for them to be open to lots of different ideas or solutions to problems."

Matussek uses an "emotional responsive gauge" to measure a person's emotional outlook and life from the degree of slant in their handwriting.

"It doesn't matter if the person is left- or right-handed," Matussek said. "They will still have their own unique slant if the writing slants to the far left, the person is 'for me, myself and I.'"

"If the slant is to the far right, the person does for others and gets very emotionally involved. Most people's handwriting slants to the right. They are more people-oriented."

Matussek first became interested in graphology a few years ago after reading a story about an area teacher who used handwriting analysis to help her students. Although she didn't believe in it at first, she wanted to find out more about it.

Matussek completed an 18-month correspondence course from the International Graphology Society in Chicago, which certified her to teach graphology.

Handwriting analysis is being used more and more each day, Matussek said. Employers can use handwriting analysis to determine whether a person is suited to a job and whether two people will work together productively.

Many counselors are turning to handwriting analysis to diagnose problems and their origins, and to formulate effective courses of treatment.

"Even the scribbles of young children can be interpreted and traits of their personality can be identified," Matussek said. "This can help discover any problem areas early on and also encourage children to follow their strengths."

Matussek, who is an accountant for the United States Army Aviation Systems Command, teaches classes in graphology. During the course, those attending learn the eight basic steps of handwriting analysis. But to Matussek, graphology is also a way of helping other people.

"People can find out strengths about themselves that they were not even aware of or find some areas of weakness that they want to change," Matussek said. "The more people know about each other, the more understanding and tolerant they can be of others. I think I've shared enough of what Matussek found out from my handwriting. For the rest, only Matussek and my hand-dresser will know for sure."

Computer makes creation of imagination

There has been much research on the effects of computers on productivity. Now computers are becoming part of the creative process of artists and musicians, and their effects on the creative process are just beginning to be understood.

Jazz keyboardist Bob James, who will be appearing Thursday (Feb. 26) at the Fox, has been composing on an IBM computer, utilizing the "Textures" software, which was written by acknowledged musical software wizard Roger Powell from the rock group Utopia.

In a recent interview, James talked about the impact the computer is having upon his own creativity.

"It's very exciting, but very unknown," says James. "It used to be that I would have to sit at a desk, plunk something out and wait for two or three weeks to even hear anything close to what I had conceived in my head. And then I would have to deal with a whole group of musicians and their personalities, and the difference in the way they would play it."

"Now I have the opportunity to think of something and have it played back exactly the way I heard it."

The transition to computer composition has alleviated the composer's need to closely attend to the organizational details involved in capturing on paper what is happening in the imagination. In essence, the machine provides for a closer link between the imagination and the finished work of art.

"The process is very, very different," James said. "I go into a state of complete paranoia when I look at a sheet of manuscript paper. And for 15 or 20 years I made my living that way—writing music down in a conventional way."

"It's extremely rare now when I ever do that. Every now and then I'll have a player like Michael Brecker or Marcus Miller, who will come in and do their part on a record. You have to give them something to look at, so I end up writing it out."

"My computer system isn't yet sophisticated enough to have the automatic manuscript printer that works in a practical way for me. That technology exists, but it's in its infancy, and I haven't gotten it to work for me yet."

James concedes that composing by computer is bound to have an impact on the music itself. At this point, however, he can only speculate what that impact might be.

"It's so new I guess we are going to need a few years to see what the new compositions are like, in retrospect, in order to evaluate how much different the end results are," he says. "Right now it's like a dream. It's an incredible difference."

Delegates clash over methods to be used to select legislators

As May 1787 drew near, Philadelphia was abuzz with excitement. The great convention to revise the Articles of Confederation was scheduled to meet in this city, bringing with it some of the greatest names in the 13 "united" states.

Enough delegates had arrived by May 25 for a quorum of seven states to be declared. On that day, the revered George Washington was unanimously chosen president of the convention.

A lesser-known, but just as significant, act of the convention also occurred during the opening days. In establishing the rules that were to guide the meeting, the delegates approved a measure allowing them to reconsider any matter at a later time—even those that had already been voted upon. This rule was to come into play repeatedly throughout the course of the convention.

On May 29, Virginia Governor Edmund Randolph introduced 15 resolutions, which quickly became known as "The Virginia Plan." The plan called for the creation of an entirely new national government, with an executive, a judiciary and a two-chambered legislature. Members of the first branch were to be elected by the people, with these, in turn, choosing the members of the second branch.

The next day, May 30, the convention adjourned into a committee of the whole for consideration of the Virginia Plan. Almost immediately, concern was expressed by many delegations, particularly those from small states, over the extent of authority to be concentrated in the national government.

Thus, just five days into the convention, the die already had been cast: the large states, who felt they deserved a greater voice in any national legislature, versus the small states, who favored equal representation. The Virginia Plan, and the resulting clash between these two interests, were to dominate the rest of the convention.

On May 31, the committee of the whole approved the creation of a national legislature with two chambers. Delegates also approved the popular election of members of the first legislative branch, the House of Representatives. As part of this measure, the assembly approved proportional representation in that body.

On June 1, delegates tackled another sticky portion of the Virginia Plan: that section establishing a national executive. Many of the delegates, mindful of the colonial experience, feared a single executive would quickly assume the powers of a monarch. In the end, however, a single national executive was approved.

Next, the convention dealt with a related issue—the executive's veto power. As proposed in the Virginia Plan, the executive and a member of the national judiciary were to review acts of Congress before they became operative and, if so desired, to veto them.

It was the clear-thinking, expressive James Madison who first suggested some portion of Congress be allowed to override an executive veto, providing an important safeguard in many members' minds. But it would be June 18 before the committee of the whole finally granted veto power to the executive, subject to override by two-thirds of Congress.

On June 6, exercising its right to reconsider measures already reviewed, the committee of the whole returned to its most controversial subject: the method of selection for members of the House of Representatives.

Charles Pinckney expressed his belief the people were "less fit judges" than the state legislatures; Madison, on the other hand, reiterated his stance that the election of at least one chamber by the people was a necessity for a free government. Just a week after approving popular election, the convention voted 8-2 in favor of selection by the state legislatures. Not surprisingly, this decision would be reversed in more.

By June 7, the convention prepared to take up the method of selection for the Senate. Eventually, the debate turned in favor of those advocating selection by the state legislatures.

Cracks began to appear in the heretofore controlled convention June 9, when the smaller states, by now organized in opposition to the Virginia Plan, rallied. The debate between the two factions raged for three days until, on June 11, the large states prevailed on a narrow 6-5 vote.

When the smoke had cleared, the convention had approved a legislature with proportional representation in both chambers. Members of the first branch were to be chosen by the people, members of the second by the state legislatures.

But the fray took a turn for the worse June 15, when a plan was introduced in direct opposition to the Virginia Plan. Quickly known as "The New Jersey Plan," it called for the creation of a single legislative chamber in which the states voted equally, without regard to population.

Madison rose June 19 and systematically, point by point, destroyed the New Jersey Plan. Following his impressive presentation, the delegates voted 7-3, with Maryland divided, to approve the Virginia Plan.

On June 23, in an increasingly rare moment of relative calm, the delegates approved terms of two years for members of the first branch and six years for those serving in the second branch.

The strong passions of these men, combined with the tension and oppressive heat of that summer, brought the convention to the brink of adjournment. Tired, frustrated and worn down, delegates nearly gave up when, on June 29, two small-state delegates made a motion to reverse the proportional representation provisions previously approved by the committee of the whole. The first proposal, related to the House of Representatives, was voted down quickly. The second, pertaining to the Senate, ended in a tie vote.

Benjamin Franklin who often played the role of a calming force during the most emphatic debates, saw compromise was urgently needed. In fact as July approached, it appeared only an unlikely compromise could avoid a disastrous conclusion to the Great Convention.

Renewal at Shrine

Victorious Missionaries will sponsor a Day of Renewal at 10:30 a.m. March 7 at the National Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows in Belleville. The program will be held in the Dr. Tom Dooley Center.

Fr. Lou Brasatti, C.M., of St. Lazare's Catholic Church will be the principal celebrant. The theme for the day is "The Gift of Ourselves to Others."

The confirmation class of St. Timothy's Catholic Church in St. Louis will present a program employing their "Clown Ministry Group."

The Victorious Missionaries are disabled or chronically ill people, who struggle to know the father's love and to share that with those they meet. The Day of Renewal will be signed for the hearing impaired.

Anyone interested in joining the Victorious Missionaries or becoming a volunteer, may contact Karl Buhr at the Shrine, 618-397-6700 (TTY), or 314-241-3400 (TTY).

Cosentino may head Democrats

SPRINGFIELD — "What Party?" state Treasurer Jerry Cosentino asked.

The Democrat who is considered in some circles the shining star of state government says there is a leadership void in his party and he's the one who should fill it.

That is, there is no titular head — such as former Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, or the GOP's Gov. Thompson — to chart the future of the party or to mediate between squabbling factions.

The Democrats have a lot of "little" leaders — House Speaker Michael J. Madigan, Chicago Mayor Harold Washington, Cook County State's Attorney Richard J. Daley Jr., Cook County Democratic Chairman Edward R. Vrdolyak and others — but the chance of any of them serving as a guiding force for the whole party in the near future is unlikely.

By following through on his campaign promise to pull state funds from banks charging excessive service fees on credit cards, and the national attention that went with the act, Cosentino may just be the man to do it.

Cosentino ran last year, against party advice, against Democratic incumbent James H. Donnewald for the treasurer's office. Cosentino gave up the treasurer's post four years ago, under the party's advice, to wage a closely fought but unsuccessful bid to unseat GOP Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

The party's backing for Donnewald in last year's primary was not enough to hold back Cosentino. It also wasn't enough for two other organization-backed candidates — the two who lost to supporters of political maverick Lyndon H. LaRouche.

The campaign that ensued had most of the candidates explaining how to vote for themselves and not for the LaRouches. This made for successful but lackluster campaigns for three incumbent Democrats: U.S. Sen. Alan J. Dixon, state Comptroller Roland W. Burris and Attorney General Neil P. Hartigan.

All three, plus Democratic U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, have the capability of leading the party, but Burris and Hartigan have become involved in the nasty city elections in Chicago. With Dixon and Simon in Washington, they may be too far removed from state politics to be party leaders.

Burris has chosen to support Washington and Hartigan has picked a third-party candidate, but lifelong Democrat, Thomas C. Hynes, making such a choice can close a politician off to a Democratic faction.

Hartigan, who has wide support from Chicago and downstate and sought the governor's post in 1985, but pulled out, may have made a mistake by backing the Commonwealth Edison proposal of raising its rates this year and freezing them for five years. Anti-Hartigan and Edison pin was circulating the Statehouse on Inauguration Day.

Cosentino, from the Chicago suburb of Palos Heights, has kept his distance from the Chicago fray.

"We have the lion's share of votes in Chicago and when they're in disarray we're all in disarray," he said.

He led one of the more aggressive campaigns in the last election, defeating Republican opponent J. Michael Houston by a considerable margin. Although he led in the polls most of the way, Cosentino made it a point to attack the Republican Springfield mayor on every position he took.

Cosentino is a burly, plain-speaking politician, who captured the populace's imagination with his decision to play hardball with the banks in bringing down credit card rates.

His consumer advocate approach is that of a reformist — more like that of his 1986 primary opponent, Coalition for Political Honesty founder and now Chicago revenue chief, Patrick Quinn — than of the Cosentino of eight years ago. But he doesn't plan to make reforming a full-time job.

"A reporter asked Pat (Quinn) what he thought about it and he said, 'Well, it's only one idea,'" Cosentino said. In his campaign, Quinn proposed a long list of reformist actions he would have taken as treasurer.

"Well, that's my way," Cosentino said. "Take it issue by issue. The last thing I want to become is another pain in the neck to bankers."

Another issue he has taken under his wing, in direct opposition to Hartigan, Daley and Thompson, is to oppose the Edison proposal. The three leaders have endorsed the package in essence and Hartigan is reportedly frantic in trying to have the proposal enacted.

Cosentino, the only Democrat to speak at the inaugural ceremonies, blasted the proposal then and said he would speak out on issues as a leader even if they do not affect his office.

"I'm not a utility expert ... but, as a consumer, I know a bad deal when I see it."

He also has voiced opposition to a proposed 94-cent-per-gallon increase in the state's gasoline tax and $17 increase in license plate fees.

But as for following a party line on any issue, Cosentino says there isn't a line to follow. State Party Chairman Vince Demunio is trying to reorganize the party, Cosentino said, but that task is awesome at the time.

"There is a void and I hope to fill it."

In the next four years, loud noises should be expected from the normally quiet state treasurer's office.

Council for children meets

The annual mini-conference of the St. Louis Chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children will be held from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Feb. 28 at the Sheraton Westport Hotel.

The guest speaker will be John Allen, prominent political figure. The theme will be "Parents and Professionals: Partners in Special Education."

The St. Louis CEC Chapter will also host a variety of area professionals presenting topics that will explore, create employment options for over-21 disabled adults, recognizing the abusive family system, working with families of newly diagnosed disabled children, computers and special education, teaching compensatory skills to learning disabled, and transitional planning/employment alternatives.

The conference is open to all special educators and professionals, as well as parents of disabled persons. To register in advance or on site (9 to 9:30 a.m.), call Mary Visintainer at 314-454-6216.

Help for families of alcoholics

The St. Louis Area National Council on Alcoholism offers a family program for the non-alcoholic family members and friends starting March 4. The programs are held every other month for four Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m.

This program is entitled "Sorting It Out" and covers the disease concept, rules and roles, Tough Love, intervention and community resources.

Jenner also said she would not vote for such proposals until there is a "change in leadership." Though she did not explain the statement, Jenner has been a frequent critic of Chancellor Bruce Wissors and has called for his resignation. Wissors supported O'Dell's proposal.

O'Dell said the 12-week project, to begin in March, will partially be paid for out of her budget. Wissors said the rest will come out of general revenues.

February 25, 1987—GRANITE CITY JOURNAL 13A

History unfolds

NAVAJO EXHIBIT: Sharon Smith, Granite City, a senior at SIUE majoring in history, and Rich Thiel, Edwardsville, also a senior, put the finishing touches on a Navajo art exhibit scheduled at the Silver Lining Gallery in Edwardsville, Feb. 22 through March 14. The gallery is located at 128 N. Main St. Included in the exhibit will be hand-woven articles, sand-paintings, pottery, works of silver, painting and other cultural items. The exhibit opens Sunday, Feb. 22, at 1 p.m. with a reception. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturdays from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

High schools compete in math

The competition is tough. Area high school teams will compete for the national championship.

Basketball? Football?
No. "It's academic sports," said coach Steve Vaughn of Red Bud High School.

Vaughn's team will be among 300 area high school students competing in the Ninth Annual Team Test of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics and Science (contest Feb. 20 at Belleville Area College).

Seventeen area high schools competing in the district competition at the Belleville Campus are Alhoff, Chester, Collinsville, Columbia, Dupu, Freeburg, Gibault, Granite City, Highland, Lebanon, Marietta, Mascoutah, New Athens, O'Fallon, Red Bud, Sparta and The Governor French Academy.

Red Bud High School has been a winner six of the last seven years.

"We were state and national champions in 1981 and 1982," said Vaughn.

The Teams competition is sponsored by the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers and the Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS), whose state headquarters are at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. The cost is a $5 membership in JETS and a $5 contest fee.

More than 5,000 Illinois high school students will participate in the state's largest and most comprehensive academic contest.

BAC district winners will advance to regional competition at SIUE March 9. Regional winners will compete for the state and national championships at the University of Illinois on March 18 and 19.

Schools compete according to size as designated by the Illinois High School Association, either Class A (small) or Class AA (large). Each school sends a team of 14 students. Students may compete in two subjects, and the two highest scores by members of each team determine the composite team score. Tests will be given in biology, chemistry, English, graphics, mathematics, computer fundamentals, and physics.

"The competition has really changed the future for some of our kids. Some of them didn't plan college careers, but after winning they decided to go to college," said Vaughn.

For information, Neale Fadden, BAC contest coordinator, can be reached at 235-2700, extension 437.

Peter Jennings to lead discussion

ABS "World News Tonight" anchor and senior editor, Peter Jennings will lead a panel of local journalists for St. Louis.

The 90-minute special will be taped at the Sheldon Memorial Theater on Wednesday, March 11, at 10 a.m. The program will air on Channel 2 on March 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Jennings will moderate a panel of local journalists who will respond to audience questions concerning coverage of local and national news. The public will have the chance to meet men and women responsible for presenting the news and to understand their policies, positions and directives.

Jennings' stay in St. Louis will include a network broadcast and a local media event. On March 10 at 9:30 a.m., Jennings will hold a 30-minute press conference for area reporters, and that evening, "World News Tonight With Peter Jennings" will originate from the network's local news bureau. The newscast is aired on Channel 2, Monday through Friday at 5:30 p.m. between the Channel 2 News 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. reports.

Dr. Shipley attends chiropractic seminar

Dr. Larry A. Shipley, a Granite City chiropractor, attended a four-day research seminar in Reno, Nev. along with his wife, Ellen, and assistants, Wilma Van Hoose and Carol Whitford. He joined more than 5,000 other doctors of chiropractic, spouses and assistants from the U.S., Canada and several other countries to participate in a post-graduate educational seminar, the 28th sponsored by the Parker Chiropractic Research Foundation in the past 35 years.

Over 50 of the world's most recognized educators presented 180 classes covering nearly every phase of chiropractic practice, including the most recent research and developments in diagnosis and treatment of scoliosis, patient care and X-ray methodology.

SQUEAKY CLEAN

Squeaky clean hair is not always a valid test for cleanliness after a shampoo. Squeaky clean hair may mean that hair is residue-free, but many shampoos and conditioners intentionally leave a residue to condition or to add shine to hair. Whether the "squeak" test is valid depends on the hair. If hair is oily, avoid shampoos and conditioners that leave a residue. If hair is dry or coarse, use a conditioning shampoo and/or a moisturizing conditioner. Rinsing hair thoroughly after a shampoo is the key to getting the full benefits of a conditioner. If it is not completely rinsed out, the conditioner will seal in dirt and shampoo and leave hair limp. RAZOR'S EDGE recommends using Nexxus Hair Products.

There'll be no guessing about clean or dirty hair when you come to RAZOR'S EDGE. We give you individual attention for every aspect of hair care. Our approach to hair care is the scientific way which examines the texture and composition of your hair. Any style that you receive is one that we feel will look best on you. Come to one of the largest and friendliest salons in Granite City. Call for an appt. at 877-4979 or walk-in service is available. Tuesday-Friday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Saturday, 7-5; 2109 Johnson Road.

Home and garden show awakens spirit of spring

The calendar may still say February, but the senses will report that spring already has arrived at Cervantes Convention Center when the '87 Builders Home and Garden Show opens on Feb. 25. This annual spring show, which runs through March 1, is sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis.

The show promises to be the largest yet, with more than 800 booths displaying the products and services of more than 350 different companies. All three halls, plus a colorful annex, will cover the spectrum of home-related offerings in the metropolitan area for one-step shopping convenience.

Four different homes will be constructed on-site for visitors to tour.

Heritage Homes has returned with a Lifestyle '87 Home. Designed for modern lifestyles, the all-wood foundation combines outdoor and indoor living space into a relaxing environment. Visitors will enter from a back yard completely landscaped by Zick's Great Outdoors on the second level, then proceed downstairs to a 1,000-square-foot lower level. For approximately $40 a square foot, it's possible to build this up-beat new home.

"The Sunspace Home combines two imaginative exhibitors into a 26-by-24-foot great room with 22-foot cathedral ceilings. The home is built with large timbers and glass, which have become a trademark of Unique Homes and Patios' construction. The remainder of the structure highlights the method of construction—the highly energy-efficient patented Concept 2000 Structural Insulation Panels. The Sunspace Home is just one option open to Concept 2000 builders.

"Branson Custom Log Homes, distributor of the classic Rocky Mountain Log Homes, will erect a custom-cut 24-by-30-foot three-bedroom log home with a front porch extending the complete width of the home. Completely furnished and landscaped, this inviting home emphasizes the natural beauty and rustic warmth of log-home construction.

"Heartstone Log Homes, in a separate feature spot, returns with a combination post-and-beam and log-home display. It unites the rustic and the modern, areas allowing visitors to see for themselves the home's unique construction and finished beauty, which harkens back to yesterday.

With spring come thoughts of vacations. A unique vacation idea will be demonstrated by the Sun Seeker Houseboat, a custom 54-by-15-foot luxury houseboat offering rental, as well as investment, opportunities to potential vacationers at the Lake of the Ozarks.

Cooking programs at the show will cultivate outdoor cooking expertise and stir-fry skills. In a landscaped patio area, Laclede Gas home economists will present 45-minute demonstrations highlighting outdoor cooking—specifically using smoking, baking, flame broiling and rotisserie techniques for home barbecue grills.

Stir-fry cooking will be the focus of demonstrations by Sally Bruns, home economist with National Supermarkets. She also will hand out a stir-fry recipe brochure and coupon from National.

Kitchens and baths remain the hot spots in new and renovated homes. Both areas will be on display in abundance, with metropolitan area manufacturers and distributors providing com-

The design of the Lifestyle '87 Home on display at the show was developed by Lester Walker, an award-winning New York-based architect specializing in small home design. prehensive one-stop shopping for everything new and exciting. The show has not forgotten the handyman. Demonstrations of the latest power tools and equipment designed to give home remodeling projects a professional look will be taking place throughout the halls. Heating and air-conditioning equipment, woodburning stoves and fireplace equipment, pools, spas, decorating products, furnishings and much, much more will be represented in this sweeping panorama of home-related products and services. See the advertisement on this page for information on show hours and special discounts available.

Home & garden

Landscapes found indoors

Just as most new home construction starts with a foundation, the 2,340-square foot, two-level model home being built as the main attraction at the Home and Garden Show will include a fully exposed Permanent Wood Foundation above the convention center floor.

In order to showcase the foundation and the design emphasis on indoor/outdoor living, entry to the "Lifestyle '87" display will be through a back yard that has been landscaped by Zick's Great Outdoors.

Sponsored by the American Wood Council, an industry group, the display home will be built by Heritage Homes of St. Louis.

In addition to the wood foundation and elaborate decking, the home will showcase a number of other wood products including wood siding, a cedar shake roof and wood finishes throughout. This idea house starts with the promise that indoor/outdoor living spaces are not restricted to the Sunbelt. Designed to fit today's lifestyle, the floor plan has many unusual features—including a pervading emphasis on the home's back yard. From the entry foyer with its two-story high window wall overlooking a small courtyard to the deck areas off the living/dining room and master bedroom suite, this is a home designed for those who enjoy outdoor living. A screen porch on the lower level and extensive back yard decking and landscaping make it possible to enjoy the outdoors even when it rains.

Of the 2,300 square feet of actual living space in the home, 1,000 square feet will be contained within the innovative, energy-saving Permanent Wood Foundation, an advanced building system that withstands extreme exposure and prevents decay and insect attack. In addition to proving to be a dry, comfortable space, the main advantage of a Permanent Wood Foundation is that it is easy to insulate, water and wash at the homeowner's convenience.

In the "Lifestyle '87 Home," this means an owner can move in and live comfortably on the home's street level until ready to expand living space by finishing the lower level.

In addition to the American Wood Council, sponsoring suppliers participating in the "Lifestyle '87" show area include: Zick's Great Outdoors, Nuttome Owens Corning Fiberglas, Porter Paint, Intertherm, Honeywell Security, Elger, Andersen Windows and St. Louis Home Insulators.

After the show, the display model will be dismantled and relocated to a lot in Tower Park in St. Charles County where it will be priced under $100,000.

Magical Transformation

Winter-weary visitors to this year's Home and Garden Show, will be greeted with an instant feeling of spring in the 2,200 square feet of lush gardens, pools, huge boulder formations, 40-foot trees, Bonanite patio and outdoor decks and walks.

The principal landscaped area, designed again by Jim Meiners of "Prestige Landscapes and Patio, will feature a Japanese-type garden with cedar decking, water cascading into a reflecting pond, large trees, sandstone boulders and a profusion of flowering bulbs.

A Garden Lounge area, landscaped by Zick's Great Outdoors, will provide a place for visitors to rest and regroup. It will include a Garden Answer Shop, which will be professionally staffed to answer visitors' questions.

"Landscaping plays a key role in the Lifestyle '87 Home and the back yard is also designed by Zick's Great Outdoors.

Covecrest a designer home

A view hillside is the ideal setting for Covecrest. The slope to one side allows for a lower bedroom wing, conserving both space and heat while still allowing for a view and for natural light.

Children's activities on the lower level can't bother the grown-ups above. Teen parties can center in the family room, where sliding glass doors open to a patio. Still, the bedroom next door is buffered from noisy activities there by a full wall of closets. What teen wouldn't be pleased by the 14-foot wardrobe closet? The second bedroom also has a spacious closet, and both bedrooms are a good size. Between them is a full bath, with extra linen storage. Additional linens are available in a hall closet.

The window-lit and open stairway is accessible directly from a spacious entryway. The master suite also opens to the entryway. The privacy wall filled with wardrobe closets protects the bedroom along the entry deckway. The bath is divided into two sections: a commode and vanity are on one side, with a pocket door dividing this section from one with a second vanity and tub.

Adding elegance to a long living room are large expanses of windows to bring in the view, and a sliding glass door to a balcony deck to open up additional space for enjoying outdoor living.

The kitchen and dining room share the view through a deep bay of windows that is a perfect spot to welcome the day with a hot cup of tea. Though the kitchen worker can enjoy the sense of space and light and view because there are no interrupting upper cabinets, the kitchen still is defined as a separate area by a peninsula counter. This adds to the formal feeling of the dining area. The kitchen has wide expanses of counters and cabinets, with more than adequate space for dishes, ingredients and cooking utensils. Skylights help make it a pleasant place to be.

For a study plan of Covecrest (200-08), send $3 to Landmark Homes, P.O. Box 430 CN, Fallbrook, CA 92028. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) Designers, architects and readers with plans they would like to see featured also are invited to contact Landmark.

Designer shops fill voids

SAN FRANCISCO — Flash is dash in today's home furnishings fashions. Showrooms at the Western Merchandise Mart sparked with more lacquer than ever before. There also was more than a hint that yellow will be the hot new decorator color shortly as mauve bites the dust.

But while the showrooms glowed with lots of shiny bright, a sober mood permeated among the designers and buyers who came to shop all the glitzy merchandise spread over thousands of square feet of show space. They talked about the American furniture industry in chaos or, as it was sometimes more benignly put, in a period of intense change.

Some of the reasons are ironic. For starters, consumers aren't buying furniture as compulsively as they once did. Yet according to statistics, there are 35 million highly affluent people between 21 and 39 in the country who are eager to spend money for the latest in sleek chic, most of whom live on the West Coast. But they buy $4,000 stereo systems, not sofas.

The furniture industry is concerned about what is going on within this big market of rich, grown-up baby boomers: Is the supply out of kilter with the demand? Moreover, what is the demand? Do baby boomers want Memphis style? Do they want Country French? Will they buy more Chippendale knock-offs? How about Chippendale with goat skin lacquer or fancy faux table finishes that suggest instant marble? Vernacular is in, but does it create a market for contemporary Shaker shawl chairs or swank lacquer bedroom suites?

A large part of the problem appears to be that the new young rich want high-end furniture goodies, but they can't find them. The goodies are all sitting in huge mart showroom spaces in places like San Francisco, Dallas and Seattle that, for the most part, are open only to the trade, that is, designers and architects with cards and licenses who buy at wholesale or work with clients on a percentage basis.

Meanwhile, the traditional retail store has all but disappeared, forced out of business by discount houses and high values of real estate. The disappearance was incredibly fast. In 1979, according to trade figures, there were 22,000 major retail furniture operations in the United States. Now there are 16. Likewise, home furnishings space in major department stores shows signs of shrinking as some chains now design stores without furniture departments because the volume of area necessary for display doesn't pay back enough in dollars.

To deal with this problem of product with disappearing sales space, a whole new selling concept is coming onto the scene: high-end discount stores offering 40 percent off to the public. Ralph Rosenblum, a Bay area entrepreneur, opened the first in San Francisco just as the hurry-bury summer market got under way.

"There's a ground swell of interest in high-end merchandise," Rosenblum says with an assuring smile. "The industry hasn't recognized this. What the consumer asks is, 'What do you have to offer me?' For a long time, many of us have had too little to offer. Sometimes I think we've put ourselves in a position of being a barrier possible in front of the consumer to prevent buying. We won't even let him into the showrooms to see the merchandise. I think there are lots of people who buy a new house and don't know an architect or designer who will go to the showrooms to buy for them. Moreover, they don't want to know one."

Rosenblum's commitment to high-end discount created a flurry among designers who view his new scheme as a step into their own protected turf. Likewise, some showroom owners bristled at the possibility of having to open their doors "to teenagers and strollers" in order to compete. "Showrooms have been geared to sell to professional designers," said Richard Miller, owner of San Francisco's Design Mart. "Right now I don't think they're ready for consumer traffic."

But, added Bill Poland, president of Showplace Square (another of the many exclusive-to-trade operations in San Francisco), "we've got to remember that while we've always controlled entry, there are a lot of folk out there eminently qualified as designers who are not part of ASID (American Society of Interior Designers) or IBD (Interior Business Designers)."

Both Poland and Miller, along with Rosenblum, were part of a panel during the mart addressing the somewhat solemn issue: "Is the Furniture Industry on the Brink of Chaos and Disaster?" The panel decided yes, but predicted a breakout to booming times, hopefully, in the near future as dream journals whet more and more appetites for sophisticated, high-fashion living environments — the kind that Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire could be caught dancing in.

"What has happened," said panel moderator Robert Zinkon, "is that a changing consumer again is forcing a change of distribution in the industry. Today's consumer has an increased desire for the good life that has grown from interest in magazines and movies. Once the furniture store reigned supreme for the everyday purchase of home furnishings and design societies were highly elitist serving only the rich. Now everybody demands design."

They also demand design innovation, sophistication and wit — elements, in general, not always immediately evident in home furnishings being produced around the American furniture-making capital in High Point, N.C. American furniture design and manufacturing is steeped — more deeply, perhaps, than necessary — in tradition. It has given us enough Chippendale chair knock-offs and Mediterranean dining suites to fill the Grand Canyon.

There's beauty in Utopia 1

The covered front porch of Utopia 1 leads into a small entry area with coat closet.

Immediately ahead is a generous "great room" incorporating living/family/dining functions. The upper wall features a full fireplace and a doorway into the rear that makes up the upper wall of the great room.

To the right off the entry is the large kitchen, featuring plenty of storage and counter space plus a snack bar. A full pantry and separate utility room (with access to the full garage) are located just off the kitchen.

To the left of the entry area, just inside the great room, is a small recessed hallway leading to a full bath and two bedrooms, both with large closets.

The master suite, located on the opposite side of the house, has lavish window space. There is a full walk-in closet and a private bath with vanity and oversize soaking tub.

Offering comfort, style, space and privacy, Utopia 1 is perfect for a small family or for a single person, and is a personal experience in modern living.

For a study plan of Utopia 1 (222-71), send $3 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2832 CN, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.) Designers, architects and readers with plans they would like to see featured also are invited to contact Landmark.

Vinyl siding and accessories keep to architectural tradition

Can yesterday's architecture and today's fast-paced life-style live peacefully under one roof? The answer is yes.

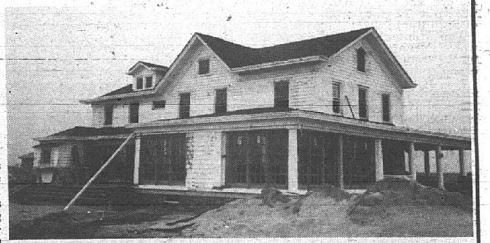

Restoration fever is sweeping the country as thousands of Americans discover the charm and grace of living in a restored old home. Today's homeowner, however, has neither the time nor the interest for the constant maintenance that some older homes demand. So while they're borrowing from the past, homeowners are turning to modern building materials such as vinyl siding and accessories to help keep the living easy.

That was the case when a New York couple bought a grand old farmhouse on Long Island. While the house was riddled with interior design "challenges," the first step was to give the home a badly needed exterior face-lift while keeping true to its architectural character.

Because the house faces the salt air blasts from the Atlantic Ocean, T-100 vinyl siding and accessories were chosen for the job. Vinyl does not corrode as other types of siding can when exposed to harsh elements. It won't peel, blister or fade because there are no painted surfaces. Maintenance requires no more than a simple cleanup with soap and water.

The homeowners selected white vinyl siding that duplicates the look and size of original clapboard. Therein lies vinyl's true beauty: It can authentically recreate the look of yesteryear while providing the ease of maintenance suited to today's life-style.

Vinyl accessories completed the look. Shutters, door surrounds, soffit and corner posts, all made of easy-care vinyl, lend charm to the appearance of this Long Island home while helping to further reduce time-consuming maintenance chores. The results are attention-getting. House Beautiful magazine showcased the home in an in-depth feature story. The homeowners are pleased, too. Not only do they have a beautifully renovated home, but time to enjoy it as well.

Stallone grapples with jeers, cheers, fatherly fears as grunting brawler

OVER THE TOP—Divorced truck driver Sylvester Stallone struggles to understand his son while battling a goonish Las Vegas arm-wrestling champ, a hokey brawler larded with cheers, jeers, sweating, grunting, sore muscles and the usual violence and chauvinism. (xx½)

Rated PG-13. Alton, Chesterfield, Crestwood Plaza, Esquire, Jamestown, Northwest Plaza, Regency Square, South County, Village.

DEAD OF WINTER—Mary Steenburgen limns three different women snared in the web of a money-mad lunatic (Jan Rubes) and his mining flunky (Roddy McDowall). A spooky manse and a howling blizzard highlight this slightly old-fashioned but entertaining suspense aimed at murder mystery fans. (xx½) Rated R. (Violence.)

Crestwood, Creve Coeur.

RADIO DAYS—Woody Allen's sentimental, good-humored valentine to his youth, a time when people crowded around the old Philco and had their imaginations fired by the nation's top broadcast writers, actors, comedians and musicians. Allen wrote the script and handles the narration. (xxxx½)

Rated PG. (Language, mild sexuality.) Creve Coeur, Kenrick.

BLACK WIDOW—Lady cop Debra Winger and psychotic Theresa Russell are the wily femmes in a slick and sleazy menace and mayhem melodrama, with Russell wedding and shedding rich husbands by murder most foul. Respectable performances, occasionally sluggish, tinged with violence, a nasty dismemberment and a trick ending. (xx½)

Rated R. (Sexuality, violence.) Jamestown, Northwest Plaza, Esquire, Woods Mill, Crestwood Plaza, Regency Square.

FROM THE HIP—Tasteless tripe with Judd Nelson as a grandstanding young lawyer with a lust for television notoriety.

The producer deserves 20 years in the slammer for this crack-brained atrocity about warring attorneys and their courtroom tantrums, objections and stupid gavel-throwing. (x½)

Rated PG. (Language.) Galleria, Northwest Square, Clarkson, Des Peres, Eads Ferry, Ronnie's, St. Clair.

OUTRAGEOUS FORTUNE—A thrill, vulgar, but occasionally droll comedy notable for the chemistry between stars Bette Midler and Shelly Long. Rowdy, contrived chase film that winds up in the desert with George Carlin as a drunken Indian involved with Midler and Long and some CIA/KGB types. (xxxx½)

Rated R. (Language, sexual theme.) Cinema IV, Kenrick, Ronnie's, St. Clair, Westport.

PLATOON—Writer-director Oliver Stone delivers a fictionalized but awesome account of his experiences in Vietnam as seen through the eyes of Eic. Chris Taylor (Charlie Sheen).

Tom Berenger and Willem Dafoe are the tough sergeants who put Taylor and everyone else, to the test.

The stomach-turning violence won't enchant the ladies but the battle scenes are incredibly realistic.

An Academy Award nominee for best picture. (xxxxx)

Rated R. (Relentless four-letter words, gore.) Cinema IV, Center, Clarkson, Halls Ferry, Ronnie's, Shady Oak, Westport.

THE BEDROOM WINDOW—An adulterous affair, a psycho-pat and a killer and we mean he gone away from the elements of this Hitchcockian thriller starring Steve Guttenberg and Isabelle Huppert. Fair technical qualities but decently acted—a window worth peeking through. (xxx)

Rated R. (Nudity.) Crestwood Plaza, Northwest Square, Cross Keys, St. Clair.

LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS—A voracious man-eating plant thrives on blood and makes deals like the devil in a broadly played musical comedy that walks a fine line between real drama and campy gags.

Ellen Greene and Rick Moranis are hilarious as flower-shop lovers in an engaging romp directed by Frank Oz that's long on laughs. (xxxxx)

Rated PG-13. Crestwood Plaza, St. Clair.

A ROOM WITH A VIEW—Director James Ivory's civilized, finely detailed filming of E.M. Forster's novel set in turn-of-the-century Italy and England. An atmospheric story of Edwardian ways by those of means, with strong ensemble work by Denholm Elliott, Maggie Smith, Simon Callow, Helena Bonham Carter and a fine supporting cast. An Academy Award nominee for best picture. (xxxxx)

Unrated. (Mild male nudity.) Hill-Pointe.

HANNAH AND HER SISTERS—Woody Allen's delightful urban comedy tinged with pathos about unsettled Manhattan residents and romantic entanglements that leave them momentarily unstrung. A superb musical score and engaging performances by Mia Farrow, Barbara Hershey and Dianne Wiest as the sisters.

Michael Caine, Max Von Sydow and Allen are the neurotic men in their lives.

An Academy Award nominee for best picture. (xxxxx½)

Rated PG-13. (Language, sexual situations.) Creve Coeur, Kenrick.

CHILDREN OF A LESSER GOD—William Hurt and hearing-impaired actress Marlee Matlin score in director Randa Haines' adaptation of Mark Medoff's drama about a love affair between an unorthodox speech therapist and a brilliant deaf girl working as a cleaning woman in a school she once attended.

A poignant drama about the need for self-esteem that received an Academy Award nomination for best picture. (xxxxx½)

Rated R. (Language, sexual theme.) Grandview, Clarkson, Ronnie's, St. Clair.

CROCODILE DUNDEE—Affectionate satirical swipe at the clash of cultures, with Aussie actor Paul Hogan playing a swashbuckling outdoorsman mangled by a croc and turned into a celebrity-hero by New York newspaperwoman Linda Kozlowski.

A droll and observant comedy about cock-tailing Manhattan sophisticates, hookers and muggers as seen through the eyes of a laid-back character from the Australian outback. (xxxxx)

Rated PG-13. (Language.) Chesterfield, Esquire, Village, Northwest Square, Alton, Cross Keys, Des Peres, Eureka, Ronnie's.

THE GOLDEN CHILD—Tedious, tacky comedy with Eddie Murphy hot to save mankind aided by a cute kid.

A lousy script sabotages a film that doesn't do a thing for Murphy's career. (xx½)

Rated PG-13. (Language.) Northwest Plaza, Regency Square, Halls Ferry, Kenrick, Ronnie's.

STAR TREK IV—The best of the bunch as the Enterprise crew saves 20th-century earth from incineration with sonar assistance from several endangered humpback whales. Funny and exciting. (xxxxx)

Rated PG. (Some violence.) Northwest Square, Kenrick.

THE MISSION—Jeremy Irons is the humble Jesuit seeking sanctuary for a tribe of 18th-century South American Indians exploited by greedy, violent white men, and Robert DeNiro is a late-blooming cleric prone to violence.

Nominated for an Academy Award for best picture. (xxx½)

Around the kitchen

Celebrate an American festival

Where else but in Hershey, Pa., the chocolate capital of the world, were there more delicious samples of chocolate than during the Great American Chocolate Festival? Chocolate lovers enjoyed chocolate for the love of it over Valentine's weekend at the fifth annual fun-filled event at the grand Hotel Hershey.

One festivity in particular, the Gallery of Chocolate Creations in the Making, featured chocolate specialties from local chefs and the Hershey Kitchens. These recipes are a delicious sampling of those demonstrated.

Triple Layer Chocolate Mousse Cake is three scrumptious dark chocolate layers filled and frosted with delectable Chocolate Mousse. Cocoa is the principle ingredient in both cake and frosting.

Another item, Chocolate Petit Fours, are party-fancy, bite-size cakes frosted with either a milk chocolate or semi-sweet glaze. Decorate in a whimsical style with candies or tubes of colored frosting.

There will be repeat orders for Chocolate Dessert Pizza. Fudgy, brownie-like wedges are topped with scoops of ice cream and fresh fruit before spooning on a chocolate fudge sauce. Don't leave the gallery without tasting Refreshing Chocolate Soda.

Mousse cake

Mousse cake

- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 2 cups sugar
- 1/4 cup cocoa
- 1 1/2 tsp. baking soda
- 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup oil
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- 1 cup boiling water

Chocolate Mousse

Grease and flour three 8-inch round pans.

In large mixer bowl, combine flour, sugar, cocoa, baking soda, baking powder and salt.

Add eggs, milk, oil and vanilla. Beat at medium speed 2 minutes. Remove from mixer. Stir in boiling water; batter will be thin.

Pour into prepared pans. Bake 30 to 35 minutes at 350° or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans. Cool completely.

Prepare Chocolate Mousse. Fill and frost layers with mousse. Garnish as desired.

Refrigerate at least 1 hour before serving.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Cover and refrigerate remaining cake.

Chocolate Mousse

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2 tbsp. cold water
- 1/4 cup boiling water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 2 cups chilled whipping cream
- 2 tsp. vanilla

In small bowl, sprinkle gelatin over cold water. Let stand 1 minute to soften.

Add boiling water. Stir until gelatin is completely dissolved and mixture is clear. Cool 5 to 10 minutes.

In large cold mixer bowl, blend sugar and cocoa. Add whipping cream and vanilla. Beat at medium speed, scraping bottom of bowl occasionally, until stiff.

Pour in gelatin mixture. Beat until well blended 4 cups mousse.

Makes about 4 cups mousse.

Chocolate petit

Petit Fours

Prepare either Mini Chip or Chocolate Petit Fours Cake. Cut cake into hearts, diamonds, circles or squares (about 1 1/2-inch shapes). Sandwich together with thin layer of raspberry or apricot jam.

Place petit fours on wire rack with waxed paper or cookie sheet below to catch drips. Cover until ready to glaze.

Prepare either Milk Chocolate or Semi-Sweet Chocolate Glaze. Spoon glaze over cake pieces until entire piece is covered. Allow glaze to set.

Decorate with chocolate mini chips and/or candied fruit pieces, or pipe decorations with tubes of glossy decorating gels or frostings.

Refrigerate until serving. Makes about 2 dozen petit fours.

Mini Chip Petit Fours Cake

- 3/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 eggs
- 2 cups flour
- 1/4 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate mini chips

Line 15-by-10 inch jellyroll pan with aluminum foil.

In large mixer bowl, cream

Eat fish, not oil

The general public is flooded with marketing promotions for fish oil supplements. The oils parade under many names and are packaged in a variety of forms and dosages. In many cases, they are promoted as a "cure-all" in the prevention of heart disease.

Fish oil contains a polyunsaturated fat component known as omega-3 fatty acid. It is found in greater quantities in deep cold water high-fat fish such as mackerel, salmon, tuna and sardines, but is present in all seafood.

Current research suggests that frequent ingestion of fish lowers blood cholesterol and triglyceride levels, prevents blood from excessive clotting, and may diminish arteriosclerotic plaques in blood vessels.

It is important to note that these research studies were performed with subjects consuming fish and not the extracted fish oil supplements. The positive results obtained from a fish diet cannot be applied directly to the value of fish oil supplements. In addition, there have been studies made to indicate proper dosages and possible side effects of the supplement.

The American Heart Association does not recommend the use of fish oil supplements unless they are prescribed and monitored by a physician. The effectiveness and the safety of their use over a long term has yet to be established.

It would be wise to enjoy dining on the wide variety of seafoods available, rather than spending money on supplements.

To help get started, the American Heart Association St. Louis Chapter Nutrition Committee has produced a new brochure entitled "I Love Eating Seafood." The free brochure provides tips on selection and preparation of fish, plus seven original recipes. Order a copy today by calling the Heart Information Service at 314-45-HEART, or 946-5060.

Baked fish

- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 tbsp. chopped parsley
- 2 tbsp. chopped dill
- 1 tsp. diet margarine
- Dash black pepper
- 1 1/2 lb. fish fillets
- 2 tbsp. plain bread crumbs

Lemon wedges

Line broiler pan with foil. In small bowl, combine lemon juice, parsley, dill, margarine and pepper.

Drizzle fish with cold water. Pat dry with paper towels. If frozen fillets are used, thaw.

Brush one side of fish with herb mixture. Place fillets herb-side down on broiler pan. Dot remaining herb mixture evenly over fish, then sprinkle on bread crumbs. Bake 8 minutes at 500°.

Turn to broil. Broil fillets 1 to 2 minutes until crumbs are toasted.

Serve with lemon wedges.

butter, sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Add eggs. Beat well.

Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with milk, beating just until smooth. Stir in mint chips.

Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes at 350°.

Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Remove foil. Cool completely.

Chocolate Petit Fours Cake

- 4 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup ground blanched almonds
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 tsp. almond extract
- 1/2 cup sugar

Line 15-by-10 inch jellyroll pan with aluminum foil. Generously grease foil. Set aside.

In small mixer bowl, beat egg yolks 3 minutes on medium speed of mixer. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar. Continue beating 2 minutes longer.

Combine almonds, flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt. Blend alternately with water and egg yolk mixture on low speed of mixer, just until blended. Stir in vanilla and almond extract.

In large mixer bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add 1/2 cup sugar. Continue beating until stiff peaks form.

Carefully fold chocolate mixture into beaten egg whites. Spread batter evenly into prepared pan.

Bake 16 to 18 minutes at 375° or until top springs back when lightly touched.

Cool 5 minutes. Invert onto wire rack. Peel off foil. Cool completely.

Milk Chocolate Glaze: Break 1/2 pound milk chocolate bar into pieces. Melt slowly with 2 tablespoons shortening in top of double boiler over hot water. Cool slightly, stirring occasionally.

Semi-Sweet Chocolate Glaze: In top of double boiler over hot, not boiling, water, melt 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate mini chips, 1/4 cup unsalted butter and 2 tablespoons oil. Stir until smooth.

Cool slightly, stirring occasionally.

Sundea pizza

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup cocoa
- 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 qt. ice cream, any flavor
- Sliced fresh fruits (bananas, peaches, strawberries, kiwi, etc.)
- 1 can (16 oz.) chocolate fudge topping

In medium bowl, blend melted butter, sugar and vanilla. Add eggs. Beat well with spoon.

Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder and salt. Gradually add egg mixture until well blended.

Spread in greased 12-inch round pizza pan. Bake 20 to 22 minutes at 350° or until top springs back when touched lightly in center. Cool completely.

Cut chocolate "pizza" into 10 to 12 wedges, but do not remove from pan. Place small scoops of ice cream around edge. Arrange assorted fruits on slices.

Heat fudge topping according to label directions. Pour over ice cream. Serve immediately.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Chocolate soda

- 2 to 3 tsp. chocolate syrup
- 1/4 cup chilled ginger ale or club soda
- 2 scoops vanilla ice cream
- Additional chilled club soda

Mix syrup and 1/4 cup club soda in 12-ounce glass. Add scoops of vanilla ice cream. Fill glass with additional club soda. Garnish with raspberry, strawberry or cherry.

Serve with long-handled spoon and straw.

Makes one 12-ounce serving.

Variations: Add any one of the following—3 to 4 drops mint extract, 1 tablespoon maraschino cherry juice, 3 tablespoons mashed very ripe bananas or 1/4 cup mashed sweetened strawberries.

6 medium baking potatoes, peeled
1 qt. (about) oil

Cut potatoes lengthwise in 1/4- to 1/2-inch thick strips. Soak in cold salted water 30 minutes, using 1 teaspoon salt to each quart water. Pour oil into heavy 3-quart saucepan or deep fryer, filling no more than one-third full. Heat to 375°

Meanwhile, drain potatoes. Dry thoroughly with paper towels. Place potatoes in frying basket without overcrowding. Fry 2 to 3 minutes or until tender but not brown. This can be done several hours in advance. Drain on paper towels.

At serving time, reheat oil to 375°. Place partially cooked potatoes in frying basket. Fry 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt. Serve immediately.

Shoestring Potatoes: Cut potatoes lengthwise into 3-by- $\frac{1}{8}$ -by- $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch strips. Proceed as in French Fried Potatoes. Fry potatoes, about 1 cup at a time, 3 minutes or until tender and golden brown. Drain on paper towels. Sprinkle with salt. Serve immediately.

Crunchies for kids

Munch on crunchies

The newest look in children's parties today is the home video party. Now that one-in-three lucky households owns a video recorder, it is easy to forget the local fast-food chain, bowling alley or movie house for a winter party. Instead, select family entertainment from the neighborhood video rentals.

Because popcorn and movies go hand-in-hand, brighten the party with these munchable goodies. Like movies, popcorn has entered a modern high-tech age with microwave popcorn. Virtually unknown two years ago, microwave popcorn sales have helped boost total consumption to almost 10 billion quarts a year. That amounts to 42 quarts for every man, woman and child.

Unlike the conventional variety, microwave popcorn is nutritious, high in fiber and low in calories. Its convenient preparation also makes it a favorite. Simply place a pop-and-serve bag in a microwave oven and within five minutes there will be 2 quarts of delicious munching, with no pots, pans, poppers or serving bowls to clean.

In addition to the corn popped right in the bag, try other additions like peanut butter and jelly or chocolate and peanuts, for irresistible flavors without last-minute fuss.

Peanut buttery

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ cup light corn syrup
- 2 to 3 tbsp. frozen grape juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 bag (3.5 oz.) microwave popcorn, (2 quarts popped)
- ¾ cup peanut butter baking chips

In large shallow baking dish, microwave butter on high until melted, about 1½ minutes. Stir in sugar, corn syrup and grape juice concentrate.

Stir in popped corn. Microwave on 75 percent power about

Oriental pork chops

- 8 pork loin chops, ½ inch thick
- ¼ cup oil
- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) frozen pea pods, thawed
- 3 green onions, cut in ½ inch pieces
- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, drained, sliced
- 2 stalks celery, cut diagonally in ½ inch pieces
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 red bell pepper, cut in ½ inch squares, blanched
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- ¼ cup constnach
- 1 tsp. soy sauce
- 1 tsp. brown gravy sauce
- ¼ cup dry white wine

Brown chops in 2 tablespoons oil. Add 2 cups chicken broth. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes or until tender. Remove chops from pan.

Heat remaining oil in saucepan. Stir in pea pods, onions, water chestnuts, celery, mushrooms, red pepper and garlic. Heat just until hot.

Combine reserved liquid, corn starch, soy sauce and brown gravy sauce. Cook over low heat until thickened and clear, about 5 minutes.

Add wine. Stir into vegetable mixture.
Place chops on heated serving platter. Spoon on vegetables.
Makes 8 servings.

6 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes to coat popcorn evenly.

Immediately upon removing from microwave, sprinkle peanut butter chips over top of popcorn. Do not stir.

Do not stir.
Cool completely. Break apart and store in tightly covered container.

Makes about 2 quarts.
Conventional directions: Melt butter. Stir in sugar, corn syrup

Butter, salt in sugar, corn syrup and grape juice concentrate. Bring to boil. Lower heat and cook to 250° on candy thermometer or hard ball stage.

Pour slowly over 2 quarts popped corn. Mix until well coated. Top with peanut butter chips.

Cool completely. Break apart. Store in tightly covered container.

Chocolate peanut

Chocolate peanut

- ¼ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 12 large marshmallows
- 2 tbsp. butter or margarine
- 2 tbsp. water
- 1 bag (3.5 oz.) microwave popcorn, popped (2 quarts popped)
- 1 cup cocktail peanuts

Combine chocolate, marshmallows, butter and water in 4-cup measuring cup. Microwave on high 4 minutes, stirring several high 4 minutes, stirring several times, until chocolate and marshmallows are melted and mixture is smooth.

Place popped corn in bowl. Add chocolate mixture. Toss thoroughly until well coated. Add thoroughly until well coated. Add peanuts and toss.

Conventional directions: Melt butter in large saucepan over low heat. Add chocolate, marshmallows and water. Stir constantly until chocolate and stantly until chocolate and marshmallows are melted and mixture is smooth.

Add 2 quarts popped popcorn and toss until well coated. Add peanuts and toss.

Spread out in shallow pan to cool.

Lettuce salad cup

Salad cup means crispness

There is virtually no end to the versatility of whole-meal salads. This is another piece of evidence. Chicken salad sits inside an iceberg lettuce bowl.

To prepare this delightful dish, halve and core the lettuce, then gently spread iceberg lettuce leaves apart to form bowls on individual serving plates.

A mixture of small white beans, shredded chicken, onion, bacon, apricots and parsley is spooned gently into the crisp and crunchy lettuce bowls and there it is—a small bowl good enough to eat.

A vinaigrette dressing of lemon juice and white vinegar tops this taste treat that is unbeatable for any occasion, family meal or entertaining. Serve with fresh fruit, cheese and whole-grain crackers for a complete meal.

A second chicken salad features rice and a variety of pungent vegetables and seasonings for flavor in Chicken Rice Salad Ole.

Chicken salad

- 1 (8 oz.) can small white beans or butter beans (See Note)
- 1 small head iceberg lettuce
- 1 whole chicken breast, boned, skinned, cooked and shredded
- 1/2 small red onion, thinly sliced
- 2 slices bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
- 1/2 cup sliced dried apricots
- 2 tbsp. minced parsley

Vinaigrette
Halve and core lettuce. Gently spread lettuce apart to form bowls. Place on individual plates.

Combine beans with chicken, onion, bacon, apricots and parsley. Spoon into lettuce bowls. Ribbon some Vinaigrette over salad to serve. Pass remaining dressing.

Makes 2 servings.
Vinaigrette: Combine 1/4 cup oil, 2 tablespoons white vinegar, 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon minced garlic (about 1 small clove) and 1/4 teaspoon salt in small jar. Shake to combine. Makes 1/2 cup.

Note: White beans may be prepared from dry state. Add 1/4 cup beans to 1 quart boiling water. Return to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 1 hour until beans are tender but not mushy. Drain. Cool.

Rice salad

- 2 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup rice, uncooked
- 1 cup diced cooked chicken
- 1/2 cup green pepper strips
- 1 to 2 tbsp. canned chopped green chilies, drained
- 1/2 cup plain low-fat yogurt
- 2 tsp. cider vinegar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. cumin
- 1/2 tsp. chili powder
- 1 small tomato, coarsely chopped
- 1 tbsp. sliced pitted ripe olives

Prepare rice according to package directions. Cool to room temperature.

Add chicken, green pepper and chilies to reserved rice. Combine yogurt, vinegar, salt, cumin and chili powder. Stir into rice mixture. Chill.

Stir in tomato. Garnish with olives.

Pastry bakes to flaky-good crust

To keep large blisters from forming during baking, place a paper towel on top of the crust and a second glass pan inside for half the baking time. The custard base of a quiche will be softer set than usual custard. Any meat, vegetable, or cheese may be added.

water over flour mixture. Stir with fork to form ball.
Roll out on floured pastry cloth to 1/8-inch thickness. Carefully line 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Microwave at high 4 to 6 minutes, until dough no longer appears doughy and wet.

Onion quiche

- 1 commercially frozen pie crust—Worcestershire sauce (about 2 tsp.)
- 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded mozzarella or pizza cheese
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 3 drops pepper sauce
- 1 can (2.8 oz.) French fried onions
- Parsley or chopped chives

Remove pastry from foil pan to glass 8-inch pie plate. Shape to pan. Brush with Worcestershire sauce. Microwave at high 1 minute, rotating half-turn after 2 minutes.

Sprinkle cheese over bottom of pie shell. With fork beat together eggs, cream and hot pepper sauce. Pour over cheese.

With sharp knife, cut through onions in can. Pour over top and lightly press down. Sprinkle chives or parsley on top. Microwave at medium 11 to 13 minutes, rotating pie half-turn after 6 minutes.

Let stand about 5 minutes to firm before serving.
Recipes courtesy of General Electric Microwave Guide and Cookbook.

Pastry shell

- 1 cup unfluffed all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- 6 tbsp. shortening
- 2 tbsp. ice water

In small bowl, place flour and salt. With pastry blender, cut in shortening until mixture resembles the size of peas. Sprinkle

Jonathon worth remembering

Jonathon apple-icious favorite

When it comes to the granddaddy of the apple family, the Jonathon reigns supreme. First discovered in 1820 near Kingston, N.Y., by its namesake, Jonathon Hasbrouck, Jonathans are the oldest, yet still one of the most selected, varieties.

Jonathans ripen early, ranging from light creamy red to deep mahogany, but store well overwinter for a plethora of apple-flavored delights. These apples of small to medium size have a tender but firm juicy flesh tinged with red and carry a slightly tart taste.

One of the most fragrant of all apples, Jonathans are also known as an all-purpose apple because they can be incorporated into a variety of recipes and are not only excellent for salads, pies, sauces and baked goods, but are a top choice for eating out of hand. Jonathans rank fifth in production in the U.S.

Apples of all varieties are an excellent nutritional and dietary food source, in addition to having a delicious taste, all at a mere 80 calories.

Stuffed apples

- 6 large baking apples
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup light corn syrup
- 6 whole cloves
- Cinnamon
- 2 (3 oz.) pkg. cream cheese
- 2 tsp. light cream
- 2 tsp. honey
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup raisins
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts

Core apples, being careful not to break all the way through. Do not peel. Set in baking pan. Into cavity of each apple pour 2 tablespoons light corn syrup, 1 whole clove and a dash of cinnamon. Cover bottom of pan with hot water. Bake at 350° about 30 minutes, or until apples are tender, basting occasionally. Chill.

Remove cloves. Place in serving dishes. Surround with syrup. Whip cream cheese with cream and honey until soft and fluffy. Add raisins and walnuts, mixing well.

Fill apple cavities with cream cheese mixture, heaping generously on top.

Makes 6 servings.

Apple slump

- 4 cups thinly sliced apples
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup granulated sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 recipe dumpling dough (See Note)

Combine apples, sugars, water and cinnamon in deep frying pan. Bring to boil. Cover. Cook 10 minutes.

Drop dumpling dough by spoonfuls on pieces of apples. Cover. Cook 12 minutes, or until dumplings are done.

Transfer dumplings to deep dessert dishes. Spoon apples over them. Serve with plain cream.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: Follow recipe for dumplings on package of biscuit mix.

A medley of golden oats

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped green pepper or
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup green onion slices
- 3 tsp. butter or margarine, melted
- 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups oats, uncooked
- 1 egg, beaten
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chicken or beef broth
- $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt

Saute green pepper in butter in 10- to 12-inch skillet.

Combine oats and egg in medium bowl. Mix until oats are thoroughly coated. Add oats mixture to green pepper mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, 3 to 5 minutes, or until oats are dry, separated and lightly browned.

Add broth and salt. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, 2 to 3 minutes or until liquid evaporates.

Serve in place of rice or pasta. Makes 4 servings.

Variations

Golden Oats Provencal: Add 1 medium tomato, chopped.

Golden Oats Lorraine: Add 2 crisply cooked bacon slices, crumbled.

Golden Oats Oriental: Substitute $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water and 2 tablespoons soy sauce for broth. If desired, add 1 (8-ounce) can water chestnuts, drained, sliced.

Golden Oats Pilaf: Substitute $\frac{1}{4}$ cup mushroom slices and 2 tablespoons chopped green onion or chives for green pepper.

Golden Oats Florentine: Substitute 1 cup chopped fresh spinach or broccoli for green pepper.

Golden Oats Roma: Substitute 1 cup thinly sliced zucchini and 1 clove garlic, minced, for green pepper.

Future Secretaries hear Sister Mary L. Mosier

The Madison High School Chapter of Future Secretaries held its regular meeting for the month of February. The meeting was called to order by the chapter president, Michelle Crawford. Committee reports were given by Hope Thompson, Lisa Davenport and Vicki Morgan.

After a regular business meeting the speaker for the day, Sister Mary Louise Mosier, was introduced to the members. Sister Mosier spoke for the Illinois Cancer Society on the subject of early cancer prevention and detection. She discussed the impact of breast cancer on the lives of women and explained the importance of self-examination to young women. Sister Mosier pointed out that for years breast cancer was the cause of most cancer deaths among women. However, due to the large increase in the number of women smokers, lung cancer now has passed breast cancer as the greatest cause of cancer deaths among women.

She encouraged young smokers to stop smoking and said that, if help is needed, it is available. The members were given leaflets and buttons that stressed the need to reduce the chance of getting cancer.

Births outnumber deaths last year

GRANITE CITY — The numbers of births and deaths in Granite City last year have been announced by City Clerk Bob Stevens.

There were 762 births, 503 deaths and 13 fetal deaths in 1986, Stevens said.

Tayon family hosts party

A surprise birthday party was held last week for Mrs. Clara Tayon, age 85, and Leonard Tayon, age 60.

Attending were children of Mrs. Tayon, Leonard, Perry and Bea Tayon, Florence Burnett and Frank Hahn, Marian and Joe Kastelic, and Mary and Tom Stevenson.

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren included Dottie and Bob Kim, Joe and Mary Tayon, Craig, Trisha, Eric, Delores and Keith Hendricks, Julie and John Nicol and Shawn, Ted, Michelle Stevenson, Tim and Beth Stevenson, Savannah and Kimberly, Bill and Sherry Burnett, Craig, Jason and Jamey, Sherry and Joe Begando, Helen Kacer, Bill and Hattie Kutosky and Louise Ware. A buffet lunch was served.

Beta Eta hears musical

The Beta Eta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma held its February meeting at Randy's Restaurant. Troy A festive Valentine theme was enjoyed by more than 50 teacher-educators.

The Heathertones, a choral group from Scott Air Force Base, presented a medley of songs. Marguerite Connole and Martha Massa made the arrangements for this program.

Margaret Lindner, president, presided over the business meeting. JoAnne Higgins, membership chairman, reported that applications for membership had been received and that she had attended a meeting of the Coordinating Council consisting of members from Alpha Eta, Beta Eta and Gamma Epsilon Chapters. Plans were completed for a joint installation of new members at the Lockhaven Country Club Sept. 12.

Jeanette Dohager introduced Cindy Diemer and her mother as special guests. Cindy was awarded a Recruitment Grant to assist her as she begins her college career at SIUE in the fall in the field of elementary education.

Other guests included Sally Cameron, daughter of Nancy Barnett, former member Dawn Lowe, who has moved with her husband to the Springfield, Ill., area, and Carol Land, minister at the Unity Church, Collinsville.

Dr. Jean Hall, legislative chairman, discussed benefits that will be available to teachers who retired prior to Jan. 1, 1977.

The president reminded the members that the Delta Kappa Gamma state convention will be held April 3-5 at the O'Hara Marriott, Chicago. Several Beta Eta members plan to attend.

Hostesses for the meeting were Margie McGarrahan, Virginia Oram and Mildred McCormick. Members attending from the Granite City area were Nancy Rainer, Joyce Tracey, Joanne Higgins, Mary Sue Harper, Jean Hall, Virginia Oram, Sandra DeMoulin, Barbara Williams and Connie Balen.

Here are six ways to know good eye care when you see it. They also happen to be the 6 reasons why millions trust their eyes to Pearle.

1. A thorough eye exam. An experienced Doctor of Optometry will make sure you get the prescription that's right for you.
2. The latest frames. For stepping out. Or for working out. A professional stylist will help you choose the frames that are right for you.
3. The latest contact lenses. All of them. Soft. Hard. Extended wear. Even bifocal.
4. Glasses within hours. An in-store lab in every Pearle means you can usually have your glasses in just hours. Without giving up the slightest bit of quality.
5. A solid guarantee. For a whole year. If you bought your glasses at Pearle, you can take them back to any Pearle. We'll repair or replace them. No questions. No excuses. No charge.
6. 25 years of experience. For a quarter of a century we've been putting all this into every pair of our glasses and contacts. Why? Because behind every pair of our glasses and contacts is your only pair of eyes.

SAVE $20 AT PEARLE.

The Ladies Sodality of St. Elizabeth Catholic Church held its first meeting of 1987, with the newly elected president, Mary Ann Gensert, presiding. Mrs. Gensert thanked the 1986 committee chairmen and their committees for their efforts.

Those recognized included Jan Polach and Maggie Groboski, co-chairmen of the Christmas dinner dance; Mrs. Polach, Mrs. Groboski and the eighth grade mothers for the Christmas party; and Carmen Schwartz and Linda Bukovac, who were in charge of the nursing home party.

A layette shower for Church Women United was held, with many baby items collected. President Bischoff conducted the business meeting.

It was announced that the group would hold a party at The Colonnades nursing home on Feb. 27. Other meetings of interest to the members included the district meeting for United Methodist Women held on Feb. 15 at Bethany Methodist Church in Columbia, and the Church Women United meeting held at Trinity Methodist Church.

Others attending included Alma Cowan, Gail Wyatt, Corinne Dawson, Mary Bailey and her guests, Henie Lehman, Mary Long, Dorothy Wallace and Candy Kawula.

Cloverview studies trees

"Trees are plants — They need care, too" was the subject of the program presented to members of the Cloverview Garden Club by Mrs. Eldon Meikamp at a 12:30 luncheon meeting in Jerry's Garden Center.

Segments of the study included the "Amazing machinery of the tree." The speaker described it as "quietly operating pumps, valves, filters, pipelines and processing cells of an efficiency surpassing any conceived by man."

A typical 40-foot tree every day takes in 50 gallons of dissolved nutrients from the soil in which it is planted, raises this mineral brew to its topmost leaves, converts it into 10 pounds of carbohydrate food and releases 60 cubic feet of pure oxygen into the air. It is small wonder that this intricate mechanism has for centuries inspired awe among scientists and gardeners alike.

To open the business session, presided over by the vice president, Mrs. B.C. O'Neill, the club called was read by Mrs. Albert Taylor. The roll call consisted of naming trees bearing seed pods. The present officers will be retained for another term and an installation party will be held March 10 with Mrs. Charles Gandorla in charge of arrangements. Others serving on the committee are Mrs. William Mihi and Mrs. Taylor.

In correspondence received from the Garden Clubs of Illinois Inc., it was stated that member pins are now available and ordered. The club will have an oval cloisonne pin bears the outline of Illinois and the state symbols, violet, cardinal and oak leaves.

The pin commemorates the 60th anniversary of the Garden Clubs of Illinois.

Announcement was made of the state flower show, "Daffodils and Dinosaurs," to be held March 13-15 in the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. All federated clubs are invited to participate.

It was reported that a weeping fig plant was donated to the Colonial Haven Nursing Home in January and a Valentine arrangement was given as the February project. This has been a continuing project for the club.

Other members attending the meeting were Mesdames Clarence Etheridge, Louise Sedlack, George Stearns and Donald Tabor.

Eagles Auxiliary at state meeting

Eagles Auxiliary 1126 members attended an auxiliary state conference hosted by Effingham Auxiliary 4083. Local members attending were Vincine Zerlan, Florence Hagmuer, Angle Buehler and Ann Konopka.

The meeting was held in honor of Eagles Auxiliary Grand President Joanne Rott, from James River Auxiliary 2337, Jamestown, N.D. Rott was the guest speaker and said the message she is giving throughout the United States and Canada during her year's reign is Plant the seeds of Eagledom and watch us grow. Since she is associated with farming in her state, a county and western theme was used throughout the weekend.

An initiation ceremony for seven candidates in honor of Rott was held at the meeting in the Effingham Area Home, followed by a banquet and dancing.

Warriors' bench helps in triumph over Flyers

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

EAST ST. LOUIS — Somewhere along the line, Don Deterding knew he was going to need some help from his bench.

Sophomore Mike A. Wilkinson calmly stepped to the free throw line twice in the final three minutes and made four of four free throws to help the Warriors clinch a big 62-59 win over the East St. Louis Flyers in a big Southwestern Conference game.

The victory was the fourth in a row for Granite City, which raised its record to 16-7 overall and 7-1 in conference play. They are still a half game behind Collinsville, but could win the title outright if they win home games this weekend against Altamonte and Belleville West and the Kahoks lose at East St. Louis.

"What a big win this was for us," Deterding said. "I was really sweating this one out, because things weren't going our way in the first half. Greg Lilley got in foul trouble and Eric Rytterski is just in the middle of a big slump."

So it was up to the Warriors' Big Three of Tom Taylor, Tim Hogan and Jamie Hogan. But Jamie Hogan also had to leave the game for a while with a leg injury. So Wilkinson and Davis Veizer were called on to play a good deal.

And they didn't disappoint. Their stats weren't spectacular, but Veizer supplied some big rebounds and Wilkinson was perfect from the free throw line. Taylor and the Hogans took care of most of the offense, combining for 45 points, but it was Wilkinson's foul shots that put the Warriors ahead twice in the dropping in two four seconds later and giving the Warriors the lead for good at 58-57.

Chris Gunner missed an outside jump shot, and the rebound came to Jamie Hogan, and eventually Taylor worked free for an uncontested layup with 14 seconds left to give Granite City a three-point lead with 14 seconds left.

Kenny Brown cut the lead to one with a driving layup with seven seconds left, but the Flyers didn't call timeout, and a quick inbound pass sent Jamie Hogan streaking in for the clinching layup at the buzzer.

"I don't know why they didn't call a timeout, because they still had one left," Deterding said. "But we didn't panic at any time."

"What good would it have done to call a timeout?" asked Flyers coach Coy Nunn. "I couldn't shoot the ball for them. The key was that they shot about 50 percent from the free throw line and we couldn't stop them."

The Warriors were 14 of 15 from the line on the night, including six of six in the final quarter. But it was the Flyers who were hot in the first half, particularly Lathan, as they fired away from outside to take charge.

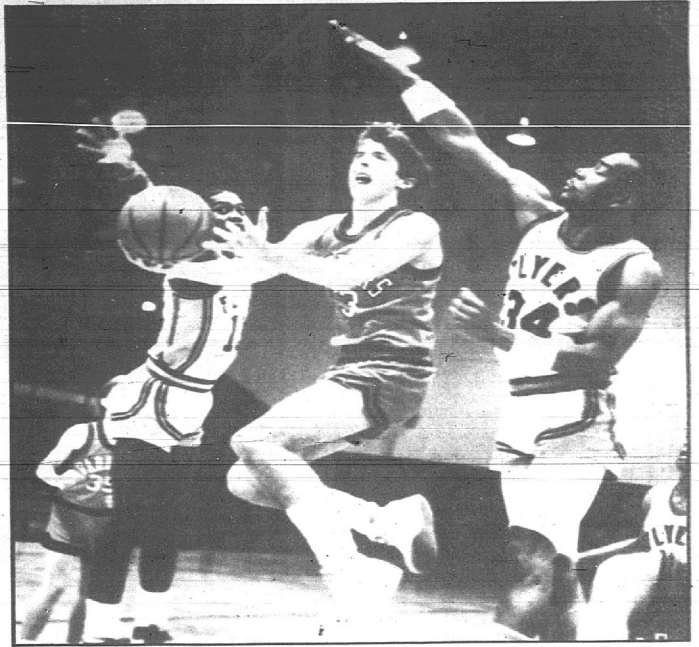

It was 16-9 after one quarter, and a pair of outside shots by Gunner made it 22-13 before the Warriors began to come back. They closed to within four when Tim Hogan stopped and popped a shot from the top of the key with 2:42 left in the half. The shot put Hogan over the 1,000-point mark in his varsity career.

Warrior wrestlers struggle for respect at state tournament

By Gary King

CHAMPAIGN — For Walt Whitaker, it was a weekend of few surprises.

As has been the case so many times during Whitaker's 20-plus year coaching career, representatives from the southern portion of the state were given a baptism in domination last weekend at the 50th annual Illinois State Wrestling Tournament.

"It's just the same old thing," Whitaker said Saturday, after watching all four of his state qualifiers bow out of the three-day, 444-bout, grappling crucible. "It's just a question of competition. They (the northern teams) don't do anything differently, they just wrestle against a lot tougher competition."

"It's just a matter of having a tough match every week instead of having one or two a month."

The four Warriors qualifiers — Brent Davis, Richie Wilson, Jon Morgan and Paul Brandt — all ran headlong into the stiffness of the competition, with Brandt making the most headway before bowing out in his quarterfinal wrestling match Saturday morning.

Davis, who advanced to state by virtue of a second-place finish in the Granite City Sectional, advanced out of the preliminary round with a 19-6 win over Kwi Soong of Carpentersville Dundee-Crown.

The 96-pounder's season came to an end in the next round, however, as Chicago Julian's Vernon Harvey scored a 12-3 decision to eliminate Davis from contention.

Despite his early exit in this year's tourney, Whitaker said he's expecting big things from Davis next year.

"I think he had an outstanding season for a sophomore," Whitaker said. "He came within an eyelash of winning the sectional championship, and now that he's been up here he'll have a better idea of what he has to do to make it up here."

Whitaker added that he'll be leaning on Davis to show some leadership next season, when he'll be the only Warrior to have known any success in the post-season.

Wilson, making his second career appearance in the state finale, was also a first-round casualty, as he dropped a 6-3 verdict to Palos Hills' Tim Reid. After his final match, Wilson said he, too, felt good about his overall season.

"I'm not real happy with it, but I'm not real disappointed with it, either," said Wilson, who finished with a 27-10 record for the season. "I would've been real happy if I could've placed."

Morgan, Granite City's 138-pounder, also benefited from a preliminary bye in his first career trip to the state tournament.

After a first-round loss to Rock Island's George Vescey, the Warrior senior came back to score a technical fall win over Chicago Collins' Bob James at the 4:59 mark of his bout.

But in the first-round wrestlingbacks, Morgan suffered elimination by way of a 4-4 tie that was awarded to Mundell's Jason Smith based on referee's criteria.

Morgan, who closed out his senior season with a 26-11 mark, refused to let the loss dampen an otherwise stellar personal season.

"There's always those 'I wish I could have,' he said. "But the season was good for me personally, and especially after the Christmas Tournament."

Brandt finishes successful career

By Gary King
Correspondent

CHAMPAIGN — With the white hood from his sweatshirt covering his sweaty head, and a slight cut giving a somewhat pinkish tint to his left cheek, Paul Brandt stood with a tired look on his face Saturday morning.

For the Granite City 167-pounder, the 50th annual Illinois State High School wrestling tournament had been a long one. The season itself had been even longer.

But now it was over. As he crossed the finish line of his Warrior wrestling career, Brandt acknowledged the end. He carefully measured what it all had meant and what he had gained from the experience of countless dreary days in the wrestling room.

"Last year, I finished third in the regional and didn't even place in the sectionals," Brandt said moments after the final bout of his Granite City wrestling career, a 9-5 overtime loss to Gary Dean of Rochelle in the quarterfinal wrestlingback round. "This year I did both."

"It felt good to go out a winner."

Brandt couldn't be blamed for basking in his accomplishments, even if for just a moment. After all, this year had been three years in the making for the Granite City senior, who posted a combined record of 54-19 in his final two years in a red and black singlet.

Since his sophomore year, Brandt had proven himself a tireless worker, a quiet leader and a vital link in the Warrior chain.

And for his efforts, he also became the most underrated grappler on the squad.

The correlation between what Brandt is and what Brandt does might not exactly match up, but it was something he learned to deal with. In his final year, he proved he didn't need limelight to get the job done.

But that's not to say he turned it down when it was offered.

"A lot of teachers, other kids at school and my family really gave me a bunch of support before I came up here," he said. "They were all wishing me good luck and that sort of thing. It was really pretty nice."

But with his somewhat subdued personality, chances are good Brandt will go back to his just-another-face-in-the-crowd status now.

In fact, Brandt probably won't be given the appreciation due him until the Warriors try to fill the void that his graduation will leave in the Granite City lineup next year.

"I've already been accepted to McKendree College, but I'm not sure I'll go there," he said. "I'll do everything for us. With the exception of his one loss to Eric Nichols, he beat up on everybody in the area."

And as he comes down the home stretch of his senior year in high school, Brandt has begun giving some thought to his next hurdle — college.

"I've already been accepted to McKendree College, but I'm not sure I'll go there," he said. "I'll do everything for us. With the exception of his one loss to Eric Nichols, he beat up on everybody in the area."

Brandt will have plenty of time to contemplate the decisions that lie ahead of him now. He'll probably find it easier to keep his honor roll status also. And as for the notoriety he'll have to do without, it's O.K. He's proven that his inner drive is not turned on by the limelights.

As Brandt leaned against a gray concrete wall in the Assembly Hall walkway, his thoughts returned to the end, and what it all meant. He scrutinized a three-year career, looked at it for all it had and hadn't been and then offered his final analysis in a Granite City uniform.

"I guess," he said smiling, "that the end means I won't have to cut weight anymore."

DEREX BROOKS, far right, of East St. Louis, was one area wrestler who did manage to place at the state wrestling tournament last weekend. He took sixth in the 112-pound class.

Hard goodbye to seniors

By Gary King
Correspondent

CHAMPAIGN — In his 20-plus years of coaching, Granite City headmaster Walt Whitaker has seen wrestlers come and go so much that he's built up somewhat of a tolerance to all the sad goodbyes.

But there were no somewhat's lodged in the Granite City wrestling coach's gut Saturday afternoon.

"It's always been tough to give kids up," Whitaker said, sitting in the Assembly Hall bleachers.

"But it's going to be especially tough this year."

"This has been a very good group of guys and they're going to be hard to replace. They're all good, bright kids. They haven't given us any hassles this year, which has been a pleasant surprise. They've also been a very cooperative group to work with."

Ironically, although the group won't be joined together on the Granite City team anymore, they may not necessarily be disbanding. All three senior wrestlers have shown interest in wrestling for Illinois College next year.

Paul Brandt said he's also considering offers from MacMurray and McKendree Colleges.

All three seniors are honor roll students with grade point averages of over 4.0 on the school district's five-point scale.

Whitaker went on to say that high school sports would benefit by more Richie Wilsons, Jon Morgans and Paul Brandts.

"There's all this talk about everything that's wrong with sports today, all the drugs and stuff like that," the coach said. "And there are a lot of things wrong with sports today. But that's what made these guys so special."

"They're not a part of that problem."

Baseball signups at park office

Any child wanting to play baseball this summer should call or go to the Wilson Park office and place his or her name on a list. Anyone born in 1979 or earlier is eligible to play this season. Attempts are made to form teams from lists with at least 13 or more boys born in the same year.

Any adult willing to manage a team in the Granite City Park District leagues should also call the office and leave his name and number, as there is always a demand for youth managers. For more information, call the Wilson Park Office at 877-3059.

goals at going to state, but it wasn't really a realistic goal for me. It was more of a dream than anything."

Brandt, another first-time state qualifier, managed to clear the first-round hurdle by defeating Bradley Bourbonnais' Steve Pyzdrowski, 6-4, to advance into the second round.

Brandt lost his next bout before bouncing back with a pin of Gurnee Warren's John Frecking in the first-round wrestling.

Rochelle's Gary Dean eliminated Brandt from the hunt with a 5-0 overtime cliffhanger, which ended in a 5-5 tie after regulation time.

"I knew he was strong, and I just let him get the cradle in too much," Brandt said after the match.

Whitaker said he thought the "psychological" aura of the tournament played a role in his squad's perennial lack of success in the state-wide affair.

"I think it's a big psychological thing for the kids," he said. "They've always heard about how good the northern teams are, so they just come up here expecting the worst. They just seem to have a tendency to only set their goals for making the state tournament rather than actually worrying about doing something once they get up here."

The Warrior coach added that the loss of seniors Wilson, Morgan and Brandt would have a voiding effect on his squad for a few years to come.

"Richie, Jon and Paul were our leaders," Whitaker said. "They pushed the younger guys all year long and made them work much harder."

"We're going to miss those

Warriors

only the sixth player in Granite City history to do so.

Julyan Brown's three-point play gave the Flyers a nine-point lead again, but two free throws by Tim Hogan, a basket by Taylor and Veizer's tap-in at the buzzer made it 31-28.

"That was a very big basket Veizer got at the buzzer," Deterding said. "We played the last three minutes of the half without Jamie, and it was very important for us to stay close at that time."

Hogan limped off with a sore calf, but returned in the second half.

"He played the second half on one leg," Deterding said. "Lilley got the first bucket of the second half, but the Warriors didn't tie the game until Jamie Hogan's basket midway through the quarter."

"We overcame a lot of adversity tonight," Deterding said. "Jamie was playing hurt, then Lilley got in foul trouble, so we needed some help."

"We're not artistic like we were last year, but this team is learning how to win. I was worried in the first half because, boy, were they ever shooting from the outside. I was just hoping they wouldn't stay that way."

The Flyers made only 10 of 27 shots in the second half and finished at 50 percent from the floor. The Warriors were 24 of 56 for the game, but their unerring stance at the free throw line was too much for a frustrated Nunn to take.

"I guess the Hogans will graduate one of these years," he said. "They've been causing us problems down here for a while. And Granite City is going to run into Lincoln soon enough."

The Flyers, who some thought of as the conference favorite early in the year, fell to 5-4 in league play and 11-12 overall. The Warriors will be rooting for them on Friday when the Kahoks travel to East Side.

"They (Collinsville) won't win down here," said Tim Hogan. The Flyers close the regular season with a game against Cahokia Saturday night, then face the Comanches again in the regional next Wednesday night, with the winner getting the Granite City-Lincoln winner on March 6.

The Warriors will be up against big odds against Laphonso Ellis and Co. in that first round game, but with the help of some players off the bench, they could make things more than interesting.
